Education costs rise 16 %; provincial cutbacks blamed

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Facing a drop in provincial funding and an increase in required initiatives, the Haliburton County Board of Education had a bitter pill to swallow in passing its 1990 operating budget with a 16 per cent increase over last year's.

"One of the major issues facing the board in establishing its 1990 operating budget was the further significant reduction in the level of financial support received by the province by way of grants," Business Administrator Jim Bradley told trustees at Tuesday's board meeting.

"The level of grant has steadily eroded from a high of 55 per cent in the mid '70s to its projected present level of 32 per cent," Bradley read from a prepared statement. "In the last two years, provincial grants have dropped five per cent."

"More and more of the cost of running our schools must be picked up by the local taxpayer."

Bradley said the decrease in the provincial grants from 1989 to 1990 cost the local taxpayer more than $200,000—or 2.5 per cent—of the overall tax increase.

This year, the county has been allocated $4,470,515 in provincial grant assistance, at an 11.2 per cent increase (or $451,127 more than last year).

Total planned board expenditures this year are $13,789,372. Provincial grants will pay for only 32.4 per cent of the overall budget.

The rest of the board's budget is paid through a municipal levy of $9,239,104, and other revenue. This means ratepayers are responsible for 67 per cent, as compared with 66 per cent in 1989, and 63 per cent in 1988.

Relative cost haven't changed much in the past few years. Salaries and benefits account for 67 per cent of the expenditures, transportation for 10 per cent, and supplies for 12 per cent. The remaining 11 per cent is for repairs and alterations, capital, tuition fees and debt charges.

"At the same time that the funding levels decline," Bradley reminded trustees, "the province requires local school boards to offer more and more services." He noted the following:

□Class Size — The province is committed to having class sizes in Grades 1 and 2 from a target in 1988 of 24.6 down to 20 in 1990. This has cost the board five additional teachers plus the classroom space. While there is funding for reaching these targets, it does not cover the full cost to the board.

□Preparation Time — Pressure from the provincial teaching community has required the board to provide teacher preparation time. For every seven teachers hired, the board must hire an additional teacher to cover preparation time.

□Science Initiatives — The board will be required to upgrade some science rooms in elementary schools to address the facilities required for a new "hands on" approach to teaching. Although some funding is available to meet this demand, it amounts to less than $3,300, or $2.25 per student.

□Employer Health Tax — The new Employer Health Tax initiated on January 1, 1990 to replace OHIP

Funds improve physiotherapy at hospital

by SALLY RITCHIE
Staff Reporter

The Ministry of Health's announcement of rehabilitation services funding for St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough, and Haliburton Hospital was received with cautious optimism by some hospital staff.

John Eakins, MPP for Victoria-Haliburton, made the announcement on behalf of Health Minister Elinor Caplan. Funding in the amount of $530,000 will be provided to the two hospitals. (St. Joseph's owns Haliburton and Minden Hospitals.)

Haliburton Hospital's Nurse-Administrator Marlene Bennett said the money is very much needed, but expressed concern about possible delays. "With the government, you never know when this is going to happen. We're hopeful (the funding) will be effective very soon."

The funds for Haliburton Hospital will be used to hire another full-time physiotherapist and increase support staff.

Susan Ripley, Haliburton Hospital's current full-time physiotherapist, said the support staff is desperately needed. Patient care is frequently interrupted by administrative tasks. Ripley said she will have to leave a patient to answer the phone, since they don't have a secretary to get the calls.

But Ripley shares Bennett's reservations. "I'm happy we're getting it, but the question is how long do we have to wait? We've waited for ages for the chronic care unit and look where it is," she says.

Municipal levies increase

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Taxpayers will have to shell out more money to help run the local schools.

Now that the Haliburton County Board of Education has passed its 1990 budget, municipal councils are faced with education levy increases from 11.1 to as high as 22.6 per cent to include in their budgets.

Municipalities are taking over where the province leaves off in its ever decreasing level of funding.

Estimated mill rate increases vary from 19 per cent for Dysart and Lutterworth to 10 per cent for Bicroft, says school board Business Administrator Jim Bradley.

In Dysart, it is estimated that the average house assessed at $700 will pay an additional $55 in education taxes. A house in Anson, Hindon and Minden assessed at $1,400 will pay an additional $80 in education taxes.

This variation in mill rate is the result of the province equalizing the tax burden across the county, he says.

Because distribution of the school budget is being recalculated, some municipalities will see an increase in their share, while others will see a decrease.

Dysart et al and Lutterworth face an increased sharing ratio this year. Municipalities whose share of the budget decreases are Anson, Hindon and Minden, Bicroft, Cardiff, Glamorgan, Monmouth, Sherborne et al, Snowdon and Stanhope.

Bankruptcy strands five locals

Getting home a problem

by MICHAEL WOLOSCHUK
Staff Reporter

Carole and Erin Finn of Haliburton were two of the unlucky Canadian travellers stranded in southern climes when Soundair Corporation went bankrupt last week.

Mrs. Finn and her daughter were preparing to return to Haliburton from Nassau when Mr. Finn, Don, telephoned them about the news.

"We were lucky," says Mrs. Finn, "For us it was a delay of five hours so we put our bathing suits on and went back to the beach. But for people with tight budgets it made a big difference whether you got out right away or not."

Many vacationers were left stranded with little or no funds and no way to get home.

Soundair, the parent company of Thomson Vacations and Odyssey International, went belly-up last week after the Royal Bank of Canada petitioned the Supreme Court of Ontario to do something about

Minister 'sensitive' to concerns about Martin Lumber job loss

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

After a positive meeting with Natural Resources Minister Lyn McLeod, county officials are going to gather more ammunition to illustrate their point about Martin's Lumber.

On Monday, Warden Don Shortreed, Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman, Dysart et al Reeve Bill Davis, Hastings County Warden Bruce Davis and MPP John Eakins travelled to Queen's Park to meet with McLeod.

They wanted to impress upon her the need to transfer timber rights from Martin's Harcourt mills to a prospective buyer, Robert Bury Company. The sale of the last remaining operation of the Martin empire is conditional upon the new owner being able to continue licensed harvesting of crown lands.

Because of the jobs at stake in both Haliburton and Hastings Counties—125 mill workers plus at least 100 loggers and truck drivers—local representatives told McLeod it's imperative the sale go ahead.

"There are others who need the timber, too, but we don't have anything to fall back on. We need these jobs," Shortreed said Monday evening.

McLeod seemed quite concerned about the potential loss of jobs, he added. County officials will now collect data to show how the mill layoffs have adversely affected unemployment and social services costs.

"We're certainly anxious to see it settled," says Tallman. Many of the workers at the saw and planing mill live in Monmouth and Wilberforce businesses are suffering because of tightened layoff budgets.

"We just can't lose jobs," Tallman added. "We're up (in unemployment) about 100 per cent."

Tallman agrees that McLeod seemed "sensitive" about the unemployment issue. But "one of her concerns was that timber is getting in short supply and there's more demand for it. She questioned if they should be re-dealing licenses."

"What I can't understand is (Martin) can't cut a stand of timber unless it's marked so if the ministry wants select cutting, they can do that. They still have control."

However, even though no promises were made, Tallman was very pleased with the meeting. "At least she listened to us, which is better than the last time I went to Queen's Park," he says, referring to the negative meeting with Health Minister Elinor Caplan about the promised chronic care unit.

Keep county office in town, angry councillors demand

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Local councillors adamant about keeping Minden as the "County Town" are furious with plans to move the county's offices outside the village.

"I have a problem with the county building moving from the village," said Councillor Bob Sisson. "I still think we should hold that county seat in our village."

During its March meeting, county council agreed to purchase the new site—4.6 acres of mixed bush on Highway 121 between Minden and Haliburton at $44,500.

Although the new location is in Minden Township, councillors feel the county offices should remain within the centre of activity of the county town.

BURSTING WITH PRIDE: Minden councillors toured with MPP John Eakins along the Main Street on Thursday to show him the PRIDE project which is under. The $170,000 project involves new crosswalks, restructuring of sidewalks, and the addition of plant boxes and park

Queen's Park helps councils face growth: MPP Eakins

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

The province is doing its best to help local municipalities cope with "future directions" of rapid growth, Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins told Minden council Thursday night.

After spending the afternoon in the village, Eakins attended Minden's council meeting "to talk about the direction you see your municipality going."

He noted that provincial funding for initiatives in the municipality include a recent Ministry of Transportation $76,400 grant for Bobcaygeon Road North. (See story on other funded projects in the county elsewhere in The Echo.)

And that afternoon, Eakins took the opportunity to look at the $170,000 PRIDE project currently underway in downtown Minden. The improvement project involves the creation of new crosswalks, restructuring of sidewalks, and the addition of plant boxes and park benches.

Eakins presented a cheque for the Ministry of Municipal Affairs' $100,000 share of the project, and the municipality is covering the rest.

"I'm impressed with some of the development improvements that have taken place in the community," he said, adding "Sometimes citizens wonder about the various contributions of government."

Eakins pointed out that the province has provided the municipality with funding for many projects. "Fifty per cent funding for some, and sometimes with no strings attached."

Provincial grants are now under review, Eakins told council. Particularly with the Ministry of Municipal Affairs, the size of grants vary for each municipality.

Four formulas go into the development of grants to determine where funds will be used. "I've asked that be reviewed, and the municipal association is reviewing that now," he said. "We're always looking at better ways" to allocate money.

Councils in Victoria-Haliburton are struggling because the areas are "expanding so quickly," said Eakins. "And I think you feel it to even a greater extent in Haliburton County."

The province also must change "to accommodate people of Haliburton better."

Eakins congratulated local politicians for taking the initiative to start a general county plan. This will help determine the goals of the county, he said.

Eakins also discussed the problem of adequate health care facilities, and addressed a study of health care, housing and social services currently underway by a steering committee.

"I think this is going to be developed in a sensible way, and I fully support that study because things are changing."

More and more people are moving into the community, he said. And in providing funding for day-care, the province is helping Haliburton County work toward "attracting young families to live, work and play here."

"I'm delighted with CHACE Place," Eakins said of his reaction to the pre-school children's facility during his tour of Minden.

The province has provided "$250,000 or more" to CHACE, he said. "And they're looking at expansion. These are the things that are going to make your community attractive."

Recreation and tourism are also important to the area's economy. Eakins said "fact-finding" is necessary to determine how these will change.

Overall, "I'm pleased with what I see here," he said, enthused that the county is "on the edge of change."

"People with a lot of expertise are moving in here." The changing population wants different things. "People have greater expectations."

To members of Minden council, Eakins offered words of encouragement and praise.

"I think you're serving at an exciting time. I want to encourage you by saying when you make decisions, people will assess you two years down the road. I'm sure your decisions are going to be good ones."

Eakins said he appreciated the opportunity to "pick up a couple of concerns to take back," and offered his services if council has any problems in the future. "That's what we're there for, to get through."

On behalf of council, Reeve Ray Moore thanked Eakins for his visit. "You answered a lot of very valid questions council has," said Moore. "It's nice of you to drop in and say hello. We had the opportunity to voice some concerns."

As a representative of the province, Eakins said it's important for he and councils to "touch base and make sure we can work together."

Provincial projects push budget up

will cost the board an additional $125,000 this year.

□Pay Equity — "While the board supports the principles addressed by Pay Equity, we are concerned with the impact it may have on salary costs," Bradley said. The legislation limits the adjustment to one per cent of salary cost each year. For 1990 the board estimates the cost to be $80,000.

□Capital — To meet increased enrolment, the board must purchase four portables at a cost of $100,000. In addition, the board is currently leasing seven classroom spaces (five in Minden, two in Haliburton). The recently completed Library Resource Centre at the high school will cost the board $110,000 in debt costs in 1990.

□Increased Enrolment — To meet the increased enrolment for 1990, nine new elementary teachers must be hired at a cost of $180,000.

Also, the board must budget items for Health and Safety (asbestos survey, $50,000), and a new parking lot at the high school as a result of lost space due to construction ($75,000). The board also had to budget for the void left with the withdrawal of Kinark Services from its Section 25 classroom ($30,000 from September to December 1990).

"Unless you want to cut programs, we have no control of it (the increases)," Bradley told trustees. "It's out of our hands."

Initiatives and special projects account for half (or $1-million) of the school board budget's 16 per cent increase.

County roads get boost

Several local municipalities are sharing in the bounty of a $1.3-million grant for road repairs in Victoria-Haliburton from the Ministry of Transportation.

Six Haliburton municipalities are receiving a total of $636,400 in supplementary funds for road work and equipment.

The local projects and equipment are: construction on Bobcaygeon Road north in Anson Township, $76,400; reconstruction of Lewis Line (West Baptiste Road) in Cardiff Township, $22,400; a new grader for Dysart et al, $90,000; reconstruction of County Road 19 (the Harburn Road) in Dysart, $363,600; purchase of a six-ton snowplow truck for Glamorgan Township, $29,100; plow truck and sander for Lutterworth, $39,900; and surfacing of Ritchie Falls Road in Snowdon, $15,000.

Ministry is getting tough on contractors who break rules

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

About 40 contractors and municipal staff had the opportunity to learn how their work can adversely affect fish habitats during a workshop presented by the Ministry of Natural Resources on Thursday.

"The recent charge in Minden made a lot of people aware of the situation," Minden District Biologist David McLeish told The Echo. McLeish is referring to charges laid against landowner Brad Bradamore and contractor Larry Hughes after silt from one of the excavation holes on Minden's main street washed into the Gull River.

"Here we can outline what is permitted and what is not," says McLeish. "Habitat loss is one of the major stresses on fisheries in Ontario. And this is the direction the MNR is going—to protect the fisheries resource."

That direction means recent revisions to the Public Lands Act. Amendments include a requirement that a work permit be obtained for conducting work on public lands and shorelands. Work includes logging, mineral exploration, industrial operations, construction, land clearing, dredging and filling. "When you buy a piece of land, you have a property boundary that ends at the high water mark," explains McLeish. "All we're asking is that you give us the same courtesy as you would a neighbour and talk

Public education spreads environmental message

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

As the fight against environmental destruction heats up, Conservation Officers with the Minden District Ministry of Natural Resources are spending more time educating the public.

"We educate and talk with schools and cottage association groups," says Conservation Officer David Week.

"I found students this year are encouragingly up on environmental problems. They're more interested and willing to make changes than the adults."

It certainly was an encouraging experience to find young people so well-informed. "They're the turn around generation. And we have to turn around."

Many young people are creating a "social stigma" by changing the

to us before working near or on crown land."

To curb the loss of fish habitat and natural shorelines, Conservation Officers from the Minden District of the ministry have laid 15 charges under the Public Lands Act; two charges under the Lakes and Rivers Improvement Act and four charges under the Fisheries Act since last April.

Fines ranging from $50 to $1,000 have been levied in Minden and Peterborough courts against a number of persons convicted for dredging, gilling or building retaining walls or docks on area lakes without work permits this year.

"We are moving rapidly toward zero tolerance in terms of how development affects our wildlife and fish habitats," says Conservation Officer David Ferguson of the Minden District.

"Charges are being laid for smaller and smaller offences. It doesn't necessarily mean they've created a disaster. But we've allowed far too many little bits of harmful development. The nickels and dimes have gone all around the shoreline."

Ferguson says the shoreline is the most productive where fish are concerned. "That's where the sun penetrates to feed the small fishes, which in turn feed the big fish. To take away the smaller feed fish will indirectly affect larger fish."

Altogether, there are four Conservation Officers working out of the ministry's Minden office. "We are involved in protection by enforcement of pretty well all natural resource laws and regulations."

Amendments to the Public Lands Act include an increase in the maximum fine from $500 to $5,000. Also, anyone continuing to work after a stop work order may face fines in excess of $200 per day.

Projects clearly causing fish habitat damage may result in charges being laid under the Fisheries Act instead. Under this act, officers may seize equipment and arrest those involved in an offence. Maximum fines for habitat damage are $5,000 for first and $10,000 for subsequent convictions. The Fisheries Act also provides for prison terms if the court sees fit.

Ferguson says that while the fines have been relatively modest in the first year of the new work permit program, the indications are that area courts, recognizing the significance of fisheries habitat destruction, may start dealing out significantly larger penalties in the future.

environmentally unsound practices of their parents and neighbours, says Ferguson.

"We're swinging, but it takes a long time. People have to realize they don't have to stop enjoying life when they cut back on the use of resources. Sail instead of water-ski. Snowshoe instead of snowmobile. It's not that painful."

Ministry of Natural Resources biologist Sandra Dosser was on hand Thursday to help contractors such as Don Francis to learn more about preserving fisheries habitat.

Education levies re-distributed

Assessment rates across the province are being re-evaluated so that distribution of the school board budget will be more fairly handled.

Each municipality has worked from a different base year in setting its assessment. Some might use 1979, while others use 1988. Since 1979 rates don't reflect the large amount of growth occurring in some areas, there have been some inequities in this system.

The Ontario Ministry of Education is phasing in the new share ratio over a five year period in order to avoid a drastic leap in taxes. We are now in the third year of this program.

Still, if the province had allocated a larger grant to the board, the overall increases wouldn't be so high. The province is passing the funding of education down to municipalities.

Here's how local taxpayers will be affected:

—Dysart must chip in approximately 34 per cent of local taxpayers' share of the budget, with an overall increase of 22.6 per cent.

—Anson, Hindon and Minden picks up an 18.7 per cent share, and will see a 17.5 per cent increase.

—Stanhope has 10.6 per cent of the share, and a 15.1 per cent increase.

—Sherborne et al has almost 9 per cent of the share, and faces a 16.9 per cent increase.

—Lutterworth has slightly less than an 8 per cent share, and a 22.5 per cent increase.

—Glamorgan has 5.8 per cent of the share, and a 16.1 per cent increase.

—Cardiff has a 5 per cent share, and an 18.3 per cent increase.

—Monmouth has close to a 4 per cent share, and a 16.2 per cent increase.

—Snowdon has about 3.4 per cent of the share, and an 18.8 per cent increase.

—Bicroft has a 1.2 per cent share, and an 11.1 per cent increase.

them to Christianity.

"The teenagers will want to go, and they won't be brainwashed," the Baptist minister says. "True Christians would never want their children brainwashed."

However, Christian principles will be a guiding force. "Certainly it would be Christian oriented but without any denominational slant. We want them to see Christ from a positive viewpoint, ...as an alternative. It would not be 'I won't go and listen to an hour and a half of preaching.'"

Group leaders will let the teens know "The reason we do this is we love Jesus Christ and we want you to know He loves you." We want them to rationally start to think through who is this Jesus and can He really love me."

An evening of "games, sports, fun-oriented type things" will be followed by refreshments and a chance to meet new friends. The Friday night gatherings will be geared to Grade 6 to 9 students.

"In order to do something of this magnitude we need lots of volunteers," especially drivers who will bring the teens into town.

The meeting is on Monday, May 7 at 7:30 p.m. at Lakeside Baptist Church in Haliburton.

'People have to realize they don't have to stop enjoying life when they cut back on the use of resources.'

Ferguson, who comes to a sad conclusion: "The adult population seems to be largely ignorant of the value of our natural resources."

Still, Ferguson found some hope for the future after touring through Grades 4, 5 and 6 classes in Victoria-Haliburton schools for recent discussions in conjunction with Earth Day and National Wildlife JOBS FOR THE TAKING: Haliburton County Employment Services Centre is gearing up for summer. Jane Selbie, Pat Clarkson and Christine Hewitt are ready to help with the job search.

The jobs are there — if students want to fill them

by SALLY RITCHIE
Staff reporter

Employers seeking students to fill summer jobs should get started quickly, says Jane Selbie, senior project officer for the Haliburton County Employment Services Centre.

"There are generally more jobs than young people," she adds, referring to this province-wide problem.

Although most employers found staff last summer, Selbie says "some had to be quite creative" in their search. Several went out of the province to find students. Others went as far as England and the United States, says Pat Clarkson, the Centre's intake secretary.

Placement Officer Christine Hewitt says the centre has received about 20 orders for summer employment so far this year, which is roughly the same as this period last year.

Many employers fill staff needs by searching in Toronto and elsewhere, Selbie says. Incentives such as meals and accommodations are offered to make jobs more attractive.

Local students who do not have cars pose another problem, especially since many would like to go home between split shifts. For this reason, some employers prefer to have employees live on site, and that may be why they look elsewhere for workers, she adds.

John Teljeur Sr. of Deer Lodge says he can see why this is a problem, but he prefers to hire local people. This supports the community and accommodating non-local employees is difficult.

Yet Teljeur has had difficulty attracting local employees so he is forced to look elsewhere. Teljeur advertises for employees in community papers all over Ontario, and has hired people from as far away as Sault Ste. Marie. Finding mature, reliable employees is a problem, he says. But, he adds, "I have some darn good people from Haliburton."

The long season makes it inconvenient for Teljeur to hire students who are in school until June, or must return to school. But he can handle losing a couple of employees in September, so he tries to hire at least one or two students from the area.

Selbie says the centre is trying to generate interest in summer jobs among students. Recent ads have been geared to that age group and Hewitt spent one day at the high school telling students about the centre and employment opportunities.

Some of those who find jobs are teenage cottagers. "We certainly encourage those outside kids to register with us...and we've always had cottagers register," Selbie says. However, cottagers tend to be more selective about jobs, since they want more leisure time. Clarkson adds "Everyone in the area knows it's a seven day work week."

Students are generally most interested in wages, but this should not always be the top priority, says Selbie. "Some jobs may not pay as much, but experience is valuable," she says, referring to jobs which may be useful for future career-moves. But for many students "the buck speaks pretty loudly," she says.

At least one student is aware of the value of experience. Haliburton Highlands Secondary School student Sherie Tremblett is looking for secretarial work this summer. The Grade 10 student wants to work as a secretarial lawyer when she finishes school.

Office and sales, construction, and hospitality are the most common employers of students. Selbie says the construction and hospitality/service industries hire the largest number of students.

Selbie says students can avoid problems by understanding the terms of employment for any job they consider. They should always seek clarification in areas they do not understand, and parents should look over any contract students are requested to sign.

customers who haven't left the country and must find alternate travel plans.

"We heard rumors of Thomson and their problems, so we were very cautious," says Town and Country Travel owner and operator Anne Larcade, adding that she tries to steer clients away from suspect airlines.

"There may be more [bankruptcies] down the line," she says. "That's why you have to deal with a certified company."

Larcade also recommends that vacationers get some kind of travel insurance so they're covered in the event something like the Soundair bankruptcy happens.

"You have to deal with a travel agent who knows the product. There are people out there who don't know what they're doing."

Harcourt-area late bus gets nod, student interest needed

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

A late bus servicing high school students in the Wilberforce area will be given a trial run until the end of the school year.

"Because of a lack of bussing, some students can't participate in after-school activities," Business Administrator Jim Bradley told trustees at Tuesday's meeting of the Haliburton County Board of Education.

Students have expressed interest in participating in activities such as track and field, badminton and driver's education. However, unless they have a ride home, there has been no opportunity for these late activities for students who live within the "Wilberforce loop," Bradley explained.

The board will run a late bus to Minden at $56 per day, and $107 for the Minden loop. On an experimental basis, the cost to hire a bus to service the Wilberforce loop on a late run will be $45 per day.

"I've been working on this for a long time," Bicroft/Cardiff Trustee Linda Mumford told the board. "Please commit for the rest of the year and all of next year on a trial basis to see if students will support it."

By providing a late bus, more students would be encouraged to attend the Haliburton high school rather than Bancroft's, she added.

The major stumbling block is that school board policy demands that a minimum number of students must sign up for each bus run. "Those numbers really defeat us," said Mumford.

Bradley said the minimum number policy for the Wilberforce bus would be lower than Minden's. About 15 students would be using the Wilberforce late bus to participate in various after-school activities, he said. In Minden, 23 students use the late bus.

"If we start putting busses out for driver's education, then we'll have to put one out for everybody," said Dysart et al Trustee Wayne Wood.

10 is the limit, and three kids need it, what happens to them?"

HHSS Principal Peter Forgrave told trustees the decision to run the Minden bus is made in the afternoon. An announcement is then made whether the bus will run or not.

"What about those who rely on the bus?" asked Casey.

"The students know (about the chances it might not run)," Forgrave explained. "They check in. They can check anytime."

"It's been running for awhile, and it works well," said Chairman Len

"We shouldn't discourage kids just because they can't get a ride home."

Lutterworth Trustee Cheryl Murdoch pointed out there could be problems meeting the minimum number policy. "The Minden bus is cancelled if the number is too low," leaving those few who signed up with no ride, she said.

"If the service is there, the numbers may increase," said Dysart Trustee Tim Casey. "We shouldn't discourage kids from doing these things just because they can't get a ride home."

Bradley said $1,500 has been set aside for running the late bus on a trial basis. "It could be run daily, or it could be hit and miss," he said.

"I think the numbers are ridiculous," said Stanhope Trustee (and bus driver) Leroy Eager. "If Salvatori. "But it needs a minimum. I don't think we should go to Wilberforce, Harcourt or Cardiff for one student."

"Do we need the limit now?" asked Mumford. "If we have it for the trial run, we'll have kids wandering around the field (after hours) trying to make the numbers."

"I feel it's going to work, but having numbers now will defeat it."

Anson, Hindon and Minden Trustee Wendy Ladurantaye disagreed. "I think it should be a low limit, but I don't think it should run with just one student."

Trustees agreed to a minimum of three students for a one-month trial run.

Minden deputy re-thinks decision

Since voting for the move at county council, Deputy-reeve Bern Berry said he's changed his mind.

During that meeting, Berry said he was glad the office would remain in the township. But "since that vote I've had several knowledgeable people mentioning they're against the move" and pointing out that in the 1894 Charter when the Provisional County of Haliburton was established, Minden village was named as the seat of government.

Also, Minden's official plan states "we are charged to maintain the centre of activity in Minden," said Berry. "It's the centre of population and all forms of commercial activity."

"I feel I have been neglectful in raising my hand at county council to vote to go out of the town of Minden," Berry said. "I can't support it."

"I agree," said Councillor Lewis Stevens. "I see no reason why we should sell the barn when the horse is still alive."

Sisson said the county should have approached Minden council before deciding to move out of the village.

The present building sits on Newcastle Street at St. Germaine, but the county decided to move because quarters are getting cramped. As the area grows, so does the staff required, and the amount of paper they must process and file. Parking is also a problem.

The new location purchased by the county—offering room for expansion and a proper parking area—has been severed into three lots by the previous owner.

A condition of the severance involved a right-of-way for access to the two lots which don't front Robertson Road. Since the county will use all three lots as one, Minden council was asked to waive the condition.

Berry suggested council let its point be known by not waiving the condition.

"I realize my time on county council is going to be difficult with this, too," Berry said.

Reeve Ray Moore said he agreed with the principles of his fellow councillors' comments, but supports the move which benefits the village of Haliburton, as well as Minden.

"This is a county structure," Moore said. "I voted for the move to centralize the services of the county between two major components. Allsaw flats is an ideal central spot for the county situation."

Moore told Berry if council wishes not to waive the condition, the county's Land Divisions Committee can easily overrule that decision.

"I know they will, but I feel strong enough in my convictions," said Berry.

Moore also pointed out there are long-range plans to eventually move the county's Registry Office, ambulance service and court system to the Allsaw flats property.

"Right now any land titles must be done in Muskoka or Lindsay," he said. "With a larger office, land titles could be moved into the Registry Office."

More space for the county office is needed now that a planner will be hired. Additions to the present building have been considered, but aren't feasible considering the need for more parking, Moore noted, adding "It's still Minden, that's important."

Moore then scolded fellow council members. "Are we looking forward to restructuring, or will we be parochial and say, 'I want everything in my community'?"

"You've got to look at it on an overview of the whole county."

In what at first seem to be a simple matter, all but Moore voted against waiving the condition on the severance. Berry asked for a recorded vote.

the airline's $50 million outstanding loan.

Soundair's insolvency left thousands of Canadians stranded in southern hotspots and forced the federal government to airlift 3,000 last weekend, and make plans to rescue an additional 7,000 in the next two weeks.

Canadians who made travel plans through any of Soundair's subsidiaries but have not left the country yet are also affected by the bankruptcy.

Compensation for travellers left in the lurch is being discussed by the government this week, but no one should expect a decision for several months, say local travel agents.

Council rejects rezoning bid for Mountain Lake property

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

A Mountain Lake rezoning has been turned down by Anson, Hindon and Minden council because of a lingering dispute over maintenance of Burch Drive. At its previous meeting, council read the rezoning bylaw a first and second time, leaving the third and final reading until Thursday night's meeting so the dispute could be settled.

However, property owner Dr. Stephen Dawson and Estelle Burch, who maintains the road, couldn't reach an agreement during the two-week interval.

The rezoning is a condition of a severance approved last September. Dawson wishes to sever the property into four lots. The property is one of five in a subdivision serviced by Burch Drive.

Burch, who established the subdivision 12 years ago, fears the newly created lots will have access through Burch Drive, a municipally-owned road which is her responsibility. Maintenance is paid for by Burch, Dawson, and the three other property owners.

Councillor Lewis Stevens said he had doubts about approving the rezoning. "I still have difficulty with this. By law, we're right. But there's still a moral problem with me. I don't understand why these two intelligent people can't come to an agreement. It sits hard with me."

"I still don't understand why you can't approve the rezoning with water access," Burch told council. "He (Dawson) doesn't need Burch Drive. Why are the cards all stacked on one side?"

"We don't have the power to do that," explained Reeve Ray Moore. Consideration for a rezoning has nothing to do with access, he explained. "We're limited to our restrictions."

Burch said she's been trying for two years to come to an agreement. "Realizing this hassle, I couldn't possibly handle eight."

Dean Elliott approached council on behalf of Dawson (Elliott is also chairman of Minden's Planning Advisory Committee). "Access is a matter between the two parties," he tried to reassure council. "It has nothing to do with the rezoning. The problem with access will have to be resolved between Dr. Dawson and Mrs. Burch."

Elliott said Burch is "mixing apples with oranges." The rezoning "doesn't guarantee access by Burch Drive. The lots to be created will stand on their own for access approval and health unit approval."

Moore tried to further assure Burch. "I see a moral situation which bothers me generally, but I feel it's resolvable," he said. "I feel very bad about it, but all we are doing is rezoning the land."

Burch said she would appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board if council approved the rezoning. "The municipality will have to take over the road," she said.

Berry was alone in voting to pass the rezoning. "I struggled with that," he said.

Then, asked for a recorded vote, Berry, asking Moore if he wished his opinion to be recorded as well.

Moore, who had refrained from voting, objected. "I do not have to vote when it's defeated on the floor," he said.

Board considers turning swamp into track field

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

A consulting firm will be hired for $1,000 before a swampy area at the high school is converted to a secondary playing field.

Trustees of the Haliburton County Board of Education agreed to hire a consulting firm to determine whether the field will hold the fill.

Business Administrator Jim Bradley said test holes may be necessary before work can begin. "The firm will give its opinion on the best approach to the job," he said.

The main football field is not affected by the project, said Bradley. A secondary field is being constructed to replace the girls' field, built on an old tile bed at the side of the school.

Then the old tile bed will be converted into a parking lot because of space lost during construction of the new Library Resource Centre. This work is budgeted at $75,000.

For the playing field, Bradley said he has already dealt with Ontario Hydro, and the Ministries of the Environment and Natural Resources.

Trustee Tim Casey agreed tests by a consultant should be conducted before work begins. "For $1,000, I think that's the only way to go. You can't go ahead and build a playing field just by bailing a swamp out."

He also noted the project doesn't seem to be "an ideal, long-term solution."

'We must make the school and community aware there is a problem,' say Susie Forgrave, Wanda Mole and Laura Fideau.

HHSS: Don't drink and drive

by SALLY RITCHIE
Staff Reporter

There are at least three people in Haliburton who want everyone to be aware that May 13 to 21 is "Arrive Alive — Drive Sober" week.

Two Grade 10 students from Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, Laura Fideau and Susie Forgrave, and staff advisor Wanda Mole recently attended a conference arranged by Ontario Students Against Impaired Driving (OSAID).

The conference, held at Aylmer's Police College, inspired these three participants to work together to find solutions to the problem of impaired driving. "We must make the school and community aware that this is a problem, and none of us can solve it alone," says Mrs. Mole.

The theme of the conference was "Together we keep the beat alive". With seminars, films and social events, the participants learned how to recruit more people into their own branch of OSAID.

The HHSS branch currently has about 10 members, which is a considerably larger membership than many other Ontario schools, Mrs. Mole says. The group runs coat checks at school dances, and Laura says they will hold other fund-raising events such as car washes. As well, they will be promoting "Arrive Alive" week with a school poster contest.

Mrs. Mole has a particular interest in this issue because seven years ago her parents were in a car accident with an impaired driver. The driver was killed, and Mrs. Mole says her parents still struggle with the trauma of the event.

It is difficult to explain how painful such accidents are to those involved, says Mole.

Susie says many students think "it can't happen to me. They're aware of the problem of impaired driving, but most people don't care."

This may be associated with the lack of diversions for teenagers, says Mrs. Mole. "I think the problem here is that of a rural area... There is not much else to do," she says.

The message about drinking and driving may be strongest if it comes from peers. Teenagers may be more inclined to listen to friends and classmates than to parents and teachers.

Although serious in its intent, all three participants agreed the conference was also a lot of fun.

Social events such as talent contests and dances offered opportunities to sample non-alcoholic drinks. Concoctions like "Almost Wine", a white grape juice, lime soda and lemon juice mixture, were served.

Mrs. Mole says the conference had a very positive focus, and encouraged everyone to realize the problem of impaired driving affects everyone.

No end in sight

Local taxpayers will be dismayed to learn that the Haliburton County Board of Education budget is up 16 percent this year, or more three times the annual rate of inflation. Education cost hikes are nothing new, of course — the board's budget has outstripped inflation for several years, and local taxpayers have come to expect the education portion of local tax bills to bite ever deeper into their wallets. But when the rate of increase shows no sign of slackening, and when the provincial government continues to reduce its share of local education expenditures, taxpayers cannot remain passive and indifferent forever. Sooner rather than later, taxpayers will begin to argue that something must be done before the costs of education get entirely out of hand.

It would be encouraging to hope that the accountability of local trustees to the public will keep costs from rising by even higher percentages in future years, but the truth is that trustees exert little real control over the costs of education. They cannot pay teachers much less than they could earn in other areas of the province, if they hope to attract and keep a competent staff. They can do little about the cost of bussing, nothing about the cost of fuel and electricity, and little or nothing about the cost of supplies. Just about the only control they exercise is over the expenditures of various school departments, but in relative terms, these are nickels and dimes. And in deciding how many dollars should be spent to replace equipment and upgrade teaching tools, trustees must keep their mandate to provide a reasonable standard of education for local youngsters, clearly in sight.

If trustees are not profligate with the public's money, and if they are sensitive to criticism over rising costs, why can't spending increases be kept closer to the rate of inflation? The reasons are philosophical as well as political.

For several years, the provincial government has been quietly but aggressively pursuing a policy of financing education from local property taxes rather than from general tax revenues. In the mid 1970's, 55 percent of the Haliburton County Board's expenditures were met by provincial taxes. This year, the provincial share will fall to 32 percent of the board's budget. At the same time, the provincial education ministry has been generating a seemingly endless stream of new initiatives, programmes, responsibilities and guidelines that the local board must meet. The needs of excellent and even average students, no longer take priority. Special education programmes, co operative education programmes, classes for the trainable mentally handicapped, and soon, pre kindergarten — a form of publicly funded daycare — are part of the new educational philosophy, and they all contribute to the rising cost of staffing, administering and operating local schools. As the system grows more complex, the pressures on the people working within it intensify. New administrative positions are created to deal with the paperwork. Teachers' unions demand and win the right to more paid preparation time. And as the local community grows, more teachers must be hired to keep classes to acceptable sizes and allow students to get the help they need.

In addition to these spending pressures, the local board must also grapple with the imperative to create new classroom space in the very near future. This will not be easy to accomplish, nor will it be inexpensive. Local taxpayers will have to pay a substantial portion of these costs, if not the entire amount.

For these reasons and many others, it is highly unlikely that local taxpayers will get much relief from the bite of rising education costs in the near future. The only small consolation is that individual tax bills may not rise at the same rate as the education budget, since growth helps share the local among a greater number of property owners.

In the end, the relief may come in the form of changes to the system of funding education costs through local property taxes. The Federation of Ontario Cottagers Associations has been arguing for a fairer form of taxation for years, and although they have so far made little real headway, 16 percent increases in local education spending can only intensify the pressure for change. L.P.

On uniforms and national pride

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

OUR READERS WRITE...

To the Editor:

In rebuttal to the letter from Mr. L.J. Buhasz, it is plain to see that he missed the whole point of my letter concerning the wearing of turbans as part of the R.C.M.P. uniform. He, like Brian Mulroney, chooses to ignore the meaning of the word uniform, which Webster's Dictionary defines as: "being the same in form, character, degree, etc. without variation". The wearing of turbans is certainly a variation from the normal R.C.M.P. uniform.

Mr. Buhasz's childish ridiculing of the R.C.M.P. uniform only serves to indicate that he has no respect for a police force that has served this country well for 117 years, and I seriously doubt that he has any pride in our history or indeed any feelings one way or the other about anything that is uniquely Canadian.

I am forced to agree with him on some of the points that he made.

First, I agree that Superintendent James Walsh would have been a legend regardless of what sort of headgear he wore. However, the fact is that he wore the pillbox hat that was part of the official R.C.M.P. uniform of the day, just as ALL R.C.M.P. members did at that time. When the uniform was changed, ALL members wore the stetson, but recently our Prime Minister (until the next election) saw fit to cave in to the demands of the Sikh community.

Secondly, I agree that the quality of an individual is of paramount importance, whether he or she is Sikh, Moslem, Christian, black, white, yellow or a little green man from Mars. This does not alter the fact that anyone who wishes to join the R.C.M.P. and who meets the enlistment criteria, should have enough sense to know that he or she must abide by the forces' rules and regulations, including the dress code. One of the main reasons for a police officer wearing a uniform is to make him readily identifiable to the public, and any bastardization of that uniform only leads to confusion.

Finally I agree with, and thank Mr. Buhasz for his feeling that people like myself may well be the subject of studies by anthropologists, who usually study man's progress and growing intelligence. In that regard he need not fear any anthropologist being interested in his earthly remains.

Yours truly,

Ed Pickard,
 Redstone Lake.

Check your history

To the Editor:

In rebuttal to L.J. Buhasz from a veteran who is not frightened, calcified or unCanadian, he would do well to remember that many regiments such as 48th Highlanders, Suish Reg't, and P.P.C.L.I. paratroopers among many other, had distinctive headgear, that ALL members were proud to wear.

In my years overseas I never saw a turban, Gurka or Anzac headwear on isolated members of a Reg't unless they were on loan. In the Sikh and Gurka regiments they ALL wore the same headgear.

I agree: courage, fighting spirit and sense of duty have little to do with dress, but discipline involves a dress code to be observed by ALL members, and instills pride of belonging to an organization that has history behind it. If you do not like the rules of the game, then do not join. One person should not be allowed to change the rules to suit themselves.

For his statement that it is incredibly sad to think there are living breathing Canadians who think that way, I would encourage Mr. Buhasz to check his history of the 20th Century and thank his lucky stars that thousands of such people bought the right in two World Wars to live and enjoy freedom in this great land we call Canada.

Cecil Rowe,

CREIGHTON FEIR

IT'S TIME ONCE AGAIN to take a tour of the village of Haliburton and the surrounding area and to see what is happening in the local world of business. Patrick Books is settled in its new store in the Dawson Gray building, lower level, on Highland Street. They have added a great many new books and their spacious new store is a credit to the downtown core... We understand that Dr. Benoit, optometrist, who has his office in the Halco Plaza is adding the former Patrick Books store to his present location to give him more office space... Some people say it can't be done but Greg Brown, local contractor, tells me that Village Court he is building on Maple Avenue in Haliburton will be opening as scheduled on May 20th weekend. This is Greg's own building and it will be a great asset to the community when it's completed... Haliburton Frozen Foods, which is located at the present time in Stedmans Mall, is planning to move in the same building but to the store fronting on York Street. It's the former Bill Davis carpet store. Bill has moved his carpet and broadloom division into his Color Your World Store, also in the Stedmans Mall... Ken Rydman of Perfect Prints tells me that he is opening up another store in the Heritage Plaza in Minden on May 19. His other stores are in Haliburton, Gravenhurst, Bobcaygeon and Carnarvon. In Haliburton, Ken has purchased the former Fenlon Travel Building next to the Bank of Montreal from Jack Brohm and will be moving his Perfect Prints business into this location... A new business opening in the village is Bins and Baskets which will feature Bulk Food, candies, gift baskets and interesting things. It will be located in the former Raymond G. Selbie Law Office directly behind Dawson Insurance Brokers Limited... Another landmark came down recently when the former Carnochan house on Oak Street, next to Cliff Newbatt Appliances was torn down to make way for a commercial building... An expansion program is underway at Easton's ValuMart at Haliburton.

It seems in this day and age that various organizations in the community are finding volunteers are hard to come by. The Haliburton Minor Softball Association who is holding its first meeting on May 3 at 7:30 p.m. at the J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School wants people to come forward to be coaches and assistant coaches. If interested please contact Nancy Brink at 457-2222 or 754-2516. Minor Softball is played every Wednesday night for children 4 years to 15 years as of January 1, 1990.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Beulah and Charlie Tyler who are celebrated their 25th Wedding Anniversary when friends gathered at the Legion Hall in Haliburton on Saturday night for an anniversary party. Also, congratulations to Elva Cooper who celebrated her 90th birthday when family and friends gathered at the West Guilford Community Centre on Saturday afternoon to help her celebrate the occasion.

The Minden Lioness Club is appealing to the general public to donate articles for its Annual Yard Sale which is scheduled for Saturday, May 19th at Hyland Crest, Minden, in the front parking lot and Auditorium. Up to this time the club is a little disappointed in the few articles that have come in and are looking for help in this regard. No clothing please. If you can help, please call the following ladies for pick-up: Mary Guillemain 286-5168, Ellen Holden 286-2488, Ena Marion 286-1914, and Velma Stiver 489-3356. All proceeds from this sale will go to Hyland Crest Bus Fund. I understand that they are only $10,000 short of the goal and when this money is raised the bus will be ordered.

My good friend Steve Hill from the Haliburton Highlands Museum at Haliburton phoned the office the other day to inform me that the picture in the April 25th Pic of the Past showing the members of County Council in the year 1899 is also in Ron Curry's book of Haliburton Village (1874-1974) on page 80. Steve says that in this photo all the gentlemen are identified.

The Sunday Supper Club will be meeting this coming Sunday, May 6th at the Cottage Restaurant in West Guilford. If you are interested in getting out for a really good meal and an evening of friendship, please call Nancy Brink at 457-2222.

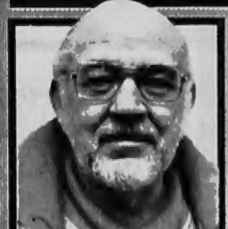

Congratulations are in order to Willis Walker of Haliburton who celebrated his 78th birthday last week.

While on the subject of cleaning up, we think that its just about time that the council of the Municipality of Dysart took a good look at Head Lake Park. A great deal of money has been spent on this park but in my opinion things have been let go and it's now in need of some repairs. More attention and workers should be in the park on a daily basis and security should be tightened up so that some people can't get away with tearing things apart. This park should be a family park and when we are thinking of activities and entertainment we should keep the family in mind.

Proposed bill assaults common sense

AS OTHERS SEE IT

BOB GIULIANO

LISTEN, DON'T TELL ANYONE else, but Rev. John Phillips is an "unregulated professional". Yep. Someone had to tell on him. I knew you would find out sooner or later anyway. Yep, good old, hoo-hawing John, "the Rev" is in fact nothing other than an "unregulated professional"! Well, he isn't quite yet such a despised person, but there is a bill before the Ontario Legislature, which if passed will make not only the Anglican Vicar of key-board fame an unregulated professional, but the very revered Globe & Mail carrier, James Q. Creighton one too! Yessir, our provincial members are putting a stop, get that, full stop to anyone other than a medical doctor giving assessments about what ails you.

Think of it: One day, you spot the Rev. Brian Plouffe licking a popsicle in the new pool room. You've been feeling depressed lately so you saunter up to the towering preacher and while he draws on and tries not to drop his popsicle on the pool table's new green, you tell him how you've been feeling: "Plouffe, I've been mighty low lately!"

Suppose Brian, the Rev. Plouffe, says directly to you, "You're depressed because you are a liar and are not being faithful to your wife". Suppose you are deeply hurt that he not only knows this but says so to your face. Suppose this confrontation in the pool hall causes you "increased physical or mental injury or pain...". You can simply call the cops. They will smack ole Brian Plouffe in the slammer. Take your pick, you can see him rot there for up to two years or collect $25,000! Whichever takes your fancy.

Yepper! That's the bill before the Ontario Legislature called, "Striking a New Balance: A Blueprint for the Regulation of Ontario's Health Professions". Is a clergy person a health professional? What about good old Dr. Gordon Smith of Naturopathy Road, Carnarvon?

Suppose you say to Gord, "Gord? I've been having some digestive troubles lately and can't sleep. What's wrong with me?" Under the new regulations, Gord cannot, simply cannot, tell you it's because of the double pepperoni and cheese before bedtime. If he did you could sue him for the pain of going to bed unstuffed and hungry for three months.

Clergy and naturopaths aren't the only ones. Suppose you're down at the hardware store having a chew with Raymond and spitting on the stone. You mention you've been having a lot of gas lately and occasionally some sharp pains right across your upper middle. Suppose Ken overhears you and shouts across the nuts and screws, "You're full of it! It's your gall bladder. Have the same trouble myself. Try B-pollen!"

Well, ole Kenny is in big trouble and you are about to make $25,000 if you just "suffer" enough pain for long enough. Or you could see him in the county bucket for two years, whichever will benefit Haliburton the most.

Our Provincial Legislature wants to create a monopoly on giving bad advice. They want only doctors to give it. Think of that! Nothing can heal naturally anymore and nothing can just be your age unless a doctor says so. All prophets will go to jail.

It will be awfully quiet in the Kozy if you can't air your biliousness and get experienced response. If anyone gives advice, they can be charged with inflicting pain, and bingo, the waitress or cashier is in jail for asking, "How are you?"

A good old unregulated professional in Haliburton, a wise machinist and experienced man of many ailments got some advice once from a trucker about relieving the terrible pain of hemorrhoids. Seems this trucker claimed Ivory soap was a sure-fire cure. He passed the word on to my friend. And he passed the word to me at a gathering of United Church people, who passed the soap. No one suffers. But suppose someone did! Bingo, the U.C.W. in the slammer for two years.

What worries me is what will become of conversation and good old advice that folks share with another. I had to get this said before the bill is passed. I too become, alas, an "unregulated professional". This of course, will be of no surprise to folks near me. I've been unregulated for years. Any quick advice?

Ah, what will become of wisdom and truth in the human community?

I wonder how many of our readers will recall when Arbour Day was a big event at local schools. It was a day set aside each year when the students would bring their rakes and shovels to help clean up the school yard of debris that had accumulated during the year. Our photo this week shows an Arbour Day picnic at Mark Sisson's bush at Hurricane Creek Falls. Never enough stories to listen to

THROUGH THE PERISCOPE

MARTHA PERKINS

MOST PEOPLE are better talkers than listeners. (I include writing as a form of talking.) With two talkers together, unless one assumes the role of listener, conversation becomes little more than a game of patience—waiting for the other to finish so you can start. Dialogue turns into two alternating monologues.

Children are the best listeners because everything is so new to them and they are eager to learn of this world. Read a story to anyone younger than five years old, and you've gained an instant friend. Unfortunately, once they learn how to read, we think they don't want to listen to any more stories and story telling ends.

Those who continue to like listening to stories can turn to 90th birthday parties.

This column came to mind as I sat listening to Elva Cooper and Ralph Bice at Mrs. Cooper's 90th birthday celebration on Saturday. The former classmates are first cousins by marriage—indeed nearly everyone at the West Guilford Community Centre was somehow related to someone else there—and have kept in touch, even though Mr. Bice left Guilford when a teenager.

Cut from the same cloth, if not the same bloodlines, Mrs. Cooper and Mr. Bice share memories and customs gleaned from days long gone by. In close-knit communities, the entire village became one large family, with one helping the other in times of need, and celebration.

Interviewing does require a lot of listening, but you can't give your total attention because you're busy writing. (I normally do not use a taperecorder because tapes take too long to transcribe.) You can't watch a person to see the way they speak with their eyes either.

Because I've written two stories about Mrs. Cooper already, my pen and notepad did not need to come out of my camera bag. So I sat listening, as the two old chums brought the past alive.

A man stops by to get a piece of birthday cake. Mr. Bice does not forget a face. "Do you know where your father was born," the Algonquin trapper, newspaper columnist and recipient of the Order of Canada asks. No? Well, says Mr. Bice, your grandparents were working up at a lumber camp near Kenisse (Kennisis). When your grandmother's time was due, your grandfather wanted to take her into town. But she said no. She had had the first one at home and she could have the second one at camp. By the time they realized something was wrong it was too late. How long did the baby boy know his mother, Mrs. Cooper asks, vaguely remembering there was some tragedy. A couple of hours, Mr. Bice replies.

Mrs. Cooper has personal experiences of such tragedies. Her worst memory, she says, was the Christmas her mother told them there would be no Santa Claus. Her father had just died, and with no such thing as mother's allowance or pensions, her mother would have a struggle tending to her four young children. Perhaps the strain was too much for her, for when Mrs. Cooper was eight, her mother died. The helpfulness of neighbours saw the children through.

The stories could go on. I told the two the next time they had a family reunion—when fewer people were involved—that I'd like to listen in again on their conversations, this time taking notes.

In parting, Mr. Bice fixed his eyes on me and in a low voice said "Don't forget this is Elva's day." That was to tell me not to write about him. He's already had many articles written about him and this was his friend's day to shine in the limelight.

Obviously, he knows how to listen.

...Talking about listening: When I interviewed young Sarah Levis about Hi-Y, I asked her what she told her friends when she went to this Christian group for teenagers. "I just tell them I'm going to euchre," I thought she replied. Why would you tell them you're going to play euchre, I asked. "Because everyone goes to euchre on Tuesday night." I thought it was strange so many young people played euchre, and she thought my second question strange.

Everyone goes to youth group.

You never know what to believe

"DAD, DAD! They did it to me again!" They could hear his voice coming up the drive and he burst into the kitchen huffing and puffing for breath. "They got me again Dad." Suddenly realizing there were others in the kitchen besides his parents, the boy went quiet as a mouse, trying to keep his heaving breaths silent and unobtrusive. The men sitting around the kitchen table never let on.

"That's OK son, don't you worry about it. Maybe tonight you and I'll sit down and work out a plan," the man said, placing his hand on his son's shoulder. Then turning to the others in the room, he said, "Tom's been getting stung by a few practical jokers at school. He's just too trusting, like his mother." Here he winked in her direction. "But if Tom here could enjoy the pleasure of being on the other side of the joke, why then his outlook might change."

"You could teach him a thing or two about that Matt, now couldn't you?" his wife piped up. He looked over at her and a big grin split his sun-burnt face in two. "Yes, I probably could," he grinned.

Curiosity got the better of the other men who still had not said a word.

"Don't tell me you're one of those practical jokers Matt," said the neighbour who had dropped in for a spare part. "No, not our Matt. He's too sensible for such foolishness, right Matt?" asked the neighbour's cousin.

Matt leaned back in the chair, rocking it slightly on the back legs. "Well," he began. His wife poured everyone a second cup of coffee knowing the visiting wasn't over yet. Tommy pulled up a chair and waited. "Well," Matt repeated, looking out the window as though gathering his thoughts, "back when I worked for that big company in the city, there were one or two incidents." His wife chuckled in the background. "For instance," he continued, "our company was always having these contests. You know, to try to get the workers all wound up about their jobs; increase production, that kind of thing. Of course, more money in our pay envelopes would have helped more than any contest. However, they were always giving away stereos, TVs, hockey game tickets and so on.

"One particular chap just loved these contests. He'd go like a house on fire every time one was announced and get real indignant when the rest of us didn't jump on the band wagon. So one day, one of his co-workers, who will remain nameless, decided to have a little fun. He accidentally let Mr. Go-Getter catch him placing labels on the bottom of boxes in the warehouse. It was explained that the company was running a new contest, based on the labels, but the other fellow was not supposed to let on he knew. Oh no, he promised, carefully eyeing

Calling 'Pack Rats Anonymous'

IHAVE JUST BEEN sorting down all the stuff my wife and I collected on our trip during the winter. I think I'm getting it all down to a manageable pile, this time.

As I travel, I tend to pick up any folder or map or handout that might tell me about a place I might miss seeing along the way. These handouts get mixed in with all the maps we started out with — and all the stuff from the places we actually went to.

As far as I can figure, I've got all the maps into a file for future reference, all the stuff from the places in a group with the photographs we took (so I can help explain them to people), and all the rest is ready to throw out.

Throwing stuff out isn't something I do easily, because I'm basically a collector. Most people seem to be to varying degrees, although there do seem to be some detached people who can live with no clutter in their lives. More power to them.

I have found that not everyone collects maps and folders on their trips. I once got a bag full of those little hotel soaps in a box of other stuff at an auction. They're the kind of thing I used to bring back for my kids when I went away to conventions.

These are different. They were apparently the trip souvenirs collected by the lady whose stuff was being auctioned. They were from hotels and motels all over the continent, some even from railway sleeping cars.

I have one of her mini-cakes of SweetHeart soap (do they still make that brand?) in front of me now. In spidery handwriting, it reads: "Lake Ida, March 21, 1968, 84 degrees."

On another level are those collectors who just can't keep their hands off of things. Last month authorities in the States caught up with Stephen Blumberg, 41, a compulsive collector, at his home in Ottumwa, Iowa.

Inside his 14-room house, FBI agents found what they call the largest collection of stolen rare books and manuscripts in U.S. history, valued at up to $20 million dollars. There were about 16,000 books, letters and manuscripts, some dating back to 1309, tucked away around the place.

They also found a suitcase chock full of book stickers from nearly a dozen major Universities around the country, which gave them a clue to where all the books came from.

When the college libraries were contacted and told the FBI was loading them in tractor trailers, they came running to offer to help sort and properly handle the fragile books.

But you don't have to be a traveller or a rare book nut — or a criminal for that matter — to be a pack rat. And some of these go too far — so far in fact, that they become hard-core, compulsive savers who need help. People with this problem can now find help in support groups founded in Garden City, California, by the adult daughter of one pair. Modelled after Alcoholics Anonymous, they meet Tuesday nights and begin by saying: "I'm Jane D. and I'm a pack rat."

Some of their members include a minister whose piles of papers fell off the front seat onto the gas pedal in her car, making it unsafe to drive. She had newspapers in her fridge and kitchen cabinets.

A computer programmer who is a video tape junky with over 1,000 tapes, can't bring himself to erase one to record something else except in an emergency. He had so much data stored in his computer at work that an electronic warning came up that said he was a "disc hog."

Extreme cases include a pair of New York twins who were afraid their collection of castoffs would be stolen — and were killed when the booby-traps they set went off and buried them in it. And in San

THE SKY'S ALIVE with geese this morning, announcing their return exuberantly. "Honk, Honk! We're back! Honk, Honk! We made it past the duck blinds in the marshes. Honk, Honk! We survived the fetid air from factory smokestacks and fossil fuels. Honk, Honk! Do you still have a place for us? Are there still wetlands we can feed and nest in without fear of weakened eggshells or oilslicks? Honk, Honk! We're back. And glad to be back. Are you glad to see us?

The moving flocks of misshapen, constantly reshaping vees make their way north like some sort of massive airlift. It's spring (or is it summer?) everywhere. Who knows, tomorrow it may snow.

But the garden... oh the wonderful communal garden... is already pushing through some tiny shoots of radishes and lettuces, and even pease and garlic. It's only just the second of May, and yet there are green leaves showing on the trees. Who would know that just two weeks ago the ice still covered many lakes. I drove home on a Tuesday night through a white-out snow storm. And frost was still in the ground.

One week later, we planted seeds in searing heat, and one week after that the seeds were poking through the ground. Talk about your greenhouse?

So what do you think? Will it snow tomorrow?

Nicki Vachon, Marc Sorenson, Kelly Youngdale, Laura Patton: Winners

Haliburton youths off to Ottawa to play in provincial championship

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Two can play better than one, especially when it's two Haliburton Highlands Secondary School teams doing the playing.

On Thursday, Kelly Youngdale, Marc Sorenson, Nicki Vachon and Lora Patton will travel to Ottawa to take part in the all-Ontario badminton championships.

Kelly and Marc have been playing together for two years.

"We're both really strong and know where each other is on the court," says Kelly. They're getting better at knowing where they should be on the court, his partner adds.

Getting to the Ontario play-offs was hard work for the boys. Their winning match in the lead-up Central Ontario game lasted an hour and a half.

"But it's well worth it when you walk away with a silver," Marc says of how well their efforts paid off.

where the labels were being placed, he wouldn't tell a soul. Well wouldn't you know but the fellow won the contest! Sure enough he got a phone call at work the following week. And when he found out the prize was a trip to Florida, he was ecstatic, telling everyone he saw all day what a great company they worked for.

"Before they knew it, the man had phoned his wife and told her they were going to Florida. He rushed home that night and started packing and everything. No one could believe that he was so gullible over a contest only he knew about. The next day he walked into work, humming to himself. His wife was already out shopping for cloths to bring on the trip. You can imagine his reaction when he found out there had been no contest, let alone any prize trip. He was madder than a hornet.

"But once he calmed down, he saw just how much he had been ticking off his fellow employees with his unbridled enthusiasm for anything and everything the company did. So he cooled down a bit and vowed to get even, which he did many times over. In fact he became such friends with many of the other men in the warehouse he ended up becoming shop steward and going to bat for them. Thank goodness he had a sense of humour."

Matt stopped for a minute to finish the last of his coffee. The others knew there was more coming. Matt was just getting started. But one look at the clock on the wall told him he'd have to make it short. There was work to be done at home today.

"I'll just tell you this last one because I have a pile of wood to chop that would choke a horse," he stated. "There was this little guy, some assistant manager in one of the company departments. Now we all knew he was basically a clerk, but he lorded it over all the blue collars and strutted around as though he ran the company single handedly. He didn't make a very good salary and so was always coming up with these great schemes to start his own business. Unfortunately all he ever did was talk and it started to get on everyone's nerves. Then he announced he was going to have an international go-kart track. He bragged he had two top of the line go-karts just waiting in his garage. We all knew it wasn't true at all. But he got on the phone to a few large corporations and even managed to line up some money for his great undertaking.

"He knew I had my pilot's licence so one day he came up to me and asked if I'd fly him down to London the following Saturday. Two world class go-kart drivers would be there from England and he told me he wanted to see if he could get one of them to drive on his new track. Of course I acted all impressed and said sure, I'd fly him down to talk to these men. That was on Wednesday. On Thursday I didn't see him nor hair of him at work. This didn't surprise me because I knew darn well he'd cancel out on the trip, since he never had any real intention of following through with it.

"On Friday morning I phoned in sick. That's when my phone started ringing. I didn't answer it because I knew it was the hot shot with some excuse. Then about noon I called and left a message with one of my friends, who knew what was going on. The message was that I had arranged to have a plane waiting at Buttonville Airport and it was all set to fly down to London at 7:30 the next morning. Well the man just about went crazy the rest of the day, phoning my house, asking the guys if they knew how to reach me. But I kept right out of sight.

"Monday morning I burst into his office, asking him where the heck he had been at 7:30 on Saturday morning. He became real flustered and said he had to go out of town at the last minute. But he knew his bluff had been called and he never bragged again about one of his phony get-rich schemes.

"Now I don't know about you fellas, but I have work to do," Matt finished, rising from his chair. He was just straightening his legs when Tom yelled in a scared voice.

"Dad, here comes Mr. Grimes and he looks awful mad! I guess he wants to talk to you about the little accident I had with his tractor this morning. I'm sorry Dad, I just didn't see his car when I backed out of the shed." Matt dashed to the window for a look. Nothing. "Gotcha!" smiled Tom.

"We'll talk tonight son," Matt returned his smile with a shrug. "Now how about you give me a hand with that woodpile."

Youths look for gold

"It's better to get the gold though," says Nicki, who with partner Lora also captured a silver at the Central-Ontario meet.

"I don't know about that, I've never had one," Marc replies.

They credit coach Tim Davies with part of their achievement. He's helped teach them that badminton is not a sport for lazy Sunday afternoons.

"It's harder than everyone thinks," March concludes. "It's quick."

Recycling info needed, residents tell council

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Recycling efforts don't work if people aren't informed of proper procedures, Minden council has been told by a group of local residents.

During Thursday night's meeting, council considered a letter from residents Jean Clarke and Mimi and Ted Carson. They urge council to take steps toward preserving the environment.

"Concern for the environment is escalating everywhere," the letter reads. "Locally, most of us cherish, and want to do our share to preserve, our beautiful, clean surroundings."

The introduction of recycling programs in many municipalities was a good start, they say. "However, this is not working as it should." The group urges council to take on the following:

—Post clear, permanent instructions on the recycling bins. (a) Do we need to separate glass colours? If so, how? (b) List material not acceptable in each compartment, such as whether paper labels must be removed;

—Initiate collection of other recyclables such as cardboard, fine paper, plastics; —Start collecting hazardous waste. "Batteries, paints, etc. are seen in the dumps. We need publicity about the dangers of this practice";

—Hire a custodian for each landfill site to assist patrons and enforce proper separation of materials;

—Promote the use of recycled paper in offices and schools;

—Ban chemical fertilizers and weed-killers in public parks;

—Undertake immediate efforts to discourage the use of excessive packaging, such as Styrofoam trays and cups by retailers.

"Rumours of MacDonald's fast food outlets in our county scare me—consider the roadside litter and increased input at landfill sites, the increased damage to the ozone layer!" the letter reads.

"For the sake of our children, our planet and our image as a safe, naturally beautiful tourist destination, please give the above measures your serious and immediate attention."

Councillor Lewis Stevens said he felt encouraged after reading the letter. "These standards can be maintained and bettered," he said. "It's gratifying our public is helping with these concerns."

Neighbours want help with unruly dogs, errant owners

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Minden council has been asked to tackle increasing problems with dogs running at large.

Cindy Wheeler and Lyn Winans approached council Thursday night to complain about a dog in their neighborhood which is "constantly loose."

"He barks and attacks people," said Wheeler. There are 37 houses on their street, "and almost every one of our neighbours has been nipped at. It should be controlled."

She said the dog's owner only lets him out on late afternoons and weekends when the municipality's Bylaw Enforcement Officer, Tom Hubercheck, is off-duty. "They know what they're doing when they let him out."

Hubercheck said he's picked the dog up a few times and has taken it back to the owner. "I've threatened to fine him." But the administration cost wouldn't even cover the cost of the present $5 fine, which is now under revision. "It's really not much of a threat."

"Because you're doing poorly economically, we have to put up with this dog?" asked Winans. She also complained that Hubercheck can only be reached in his office during the day when she's at work.

Hubercheck said he frequently tours the area and has seen the dog in its owner's driveway. The dog appears to be friendly, and its licence is up to date, he said.

He also offered his help anytime the neighbours need assistance. "A lot of people call me after hours or on weekends and I come to pick a dog up." On the average weekend, Hubercheck picks up two or three dogs.

Deputy-reeve Bern Berry pointed out a good deterrent for dog-owners is to take their pet to Dr. Peter Bennett's after it has been picked up by Hubercheck. "It'll cost up to $30 for those people to pick the dog up there," he said.

"I'm sick of it," Winans continued. "Everybody's dog gets loose sometimes, but these people make no effort to tie it."

Because Hubercheck is also busy with his work as Chief Building Official, Reeve Ray Moore said plans are underway to hire a new bylaw officer to look after parking and dogs.

Later that evening, council also considered another complaint about uncontrolled dogs running loose and in packs in Minden.

From chilling to sizzling in a week

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

What a difference a week makes.

On April 19, the early morning temperature dropped to -6.5 degrees. Exactly a week later, people were basking in sultry 29 degree temperatures.

That wasn't all. The next day, April 26, the 1901 and 1915 record of 27.2 degrees was broken in the 29.5 degree sunshine. Spring hadn't arrived, summer had.

"There was a high pressure area sitting off the East coast and the winds brought the warm air up from Mexico," says local weather watcher Jim Elstone. Meanwhile, on the other side of the Jet Stream, some parts of the Rockies Mountains received 13 feet of snow.

"It's not too unusual," Elstone says of the variations. "Don't forget this is the end of April, not the end of May."

There's an old Indian saying that Alberta is 10 months if winter and two months of bad sleighing, he says.

The Echo office recently said once the frogs arrived, there'd be two white frosts.

"There has been frost on every day of the year," Elstone notes. On July 1, 1982, the morning temperature was -0.5. In 1898, 1920 and 1977—to name just a few years—the mercury has settled at 1.7 degrees in July.

The coldest day in April was -17.8 in 1912. "We live in the land of extremes."

However, similar to last year, this has been a very—very—dry spring. Last Tuesday a thunder storm dropped 15.8mm of rain. "That's a dandy rain but it would have been better if it had lasted a long time."

The coming week should see brief but frequent rain spells. "The cold front is getting ready to go through our area. That means more seasonal temperatures, which may bring a possibility of showers almost every day. Temperatures will run at or slightly below normal for Wednesday through Saturday, and there should be a warming trend by Sunday."

The cold spot in the world was Shepherd Bay in Canada's Arctic, which recorded -39, while the hot spot was Niger with 46.

Weather trivia: Hudson Bay Company archives show that on April 28, 1757, the beer froze in the cellar at York Factory. The temperature needed to do that was "well below normal, even for that time of year."

to Haliburton and Area Businesses

Summer is just ahead of us, and thousands of cottagers and visitors will soon be flocking to the Highlands. You know it's vitally important to tell these people about the products and services you sell, and that's just what The Echo's Guide to Haliburton and Area Businesses is designed to do.

1990 will mark the fourth annual edition of the Guide and it will be bigger and better than ever, with more information, a more colourful glossy cover, and wider distribution through local businesses, lodges and tourist establishments. Last year, some 10,000 copies of the Guide were eagerly picked up and read by potential customers of your business, and this year's edition promises to be just as popular.

As in the past, we will maintain the tradition of providing a promotional article about your business equal in size to the ad space you purchase—a quarter page ad gives you a half page of exposure, a half page ad gives you a full page of space, and a full page ad means you'll have two full magazine-sized pages of promotion for your business. There's simply no better advertising value!

We'll be contacting as many area businesses as possible within the next few weeks, but to ensure you're represented in the 1990 Guide, call Creighton Feir or Deborah Dahlke at 457-1037, or fax us at 457-3275.

Power pianos push aside old uprights

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

The following was discussed in brief during Tuesday's Haliburton County Board of Education meeting:

Power surge

The Board agreed to a request from Dysart et al to allow for the construction of a power line leading from the athletic field to provide light for the train engine area. The Board will assume the monthly hydro charges and the municipality will pay the installation charges.

Play it again

Business Administrator Jim

Bradley told trustees "the piano situation has gone from bad to worse" at the schools. But a number of teachers would prefer electric keyboards, which are easier to move within the school. Bradley said the cost of repairing two pianos exceeds the cost of purchasing one keyboard at $2,500. So trustees agreed to go the electric route instead of fixing pianos in need of major repair.

Protest

Teachers can't act as nurses. That's the message of a protest letter from the local board to the Ministry of Education.

Trustees are objecting to the transfer of procedures of shallow suctioning and catheterization from health services to education in cases where students requiring these services are in local schools. The letter will be circulated to all boards in Ontario.

Asbestos

A number of consultants with expertise in asbestos management have been contacted by the board, providing estimates which ranged from $5,400 to $17,000 for an inspection.

Business Administrator Jim Bradley checked with other boards, and found the highest praise going to the lowest estimate, by the firm Trevor Harris Partnership Inc. And, if the board waits until summer for the inspections, the price may drop down to $3,400.

spite of a growing concern about the environment amongst people everywhere, Stanhope has displayed a lack of foresight and concern while other townships in the county are working toward solving a pervasive problem.

Apparently Stanhope township does not intend to implement a recycling program in the near future because of the cost involved. The council seems to be of the erroneous belief that recycling must make money, and if it doesn't then it isn't worth pursuing. But the fact is that we produce garbage and it will always cost us to dispose of it one way or another, be it environmentally, economically in the present, or economically in the future when we Francisco, a woman had so much stuff piled up in her house that it slid off the foundation.

Psychologists who have done a study for the Pack Rats Anonymous group say that about 10% of the population are compulsive savers, with men and women equally represented. They have found cases of children as young as two or three who hoard shells, coins and toys. And there seems to be no economic, racial or intellectual segment of the population who is exempt.

"The one problem we had with the survey," said one of the researchers, "was getting some of the savers to let go of it and give the questionnaire back to us."

Inn to provide free rooms for relatives of patients

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Thanks to the generosity of the Red Oak Inn in Peterborough, some Haliburton County residents will find visiting relatives in St. Joseph's General Hospital a bit less stressful.

In a pilot project, the hotel is donating 100 nights of accommodation in 1990 in honour of St. Joseph's 100th anniversary.

The rooms will be made available to "close family members of very ill or emergency patients from outlying areas who need overnight accommodation but cannot afford it," says a press release.

"I can see this being a very big help," says Barbara Dawson, Haliburton's representative on St. Joseph's board of directors. (St. Joseph's owns the Haliburton and Minden hospitals.)

"If you get a bad winter's night, coupled with the stress of worrying (about sick relatives), you've got a lot to cope with," Dawson says. Being able to stay in Peterborough will relieve some of the strain. As well, people not able to afford accommodation may otherwise not travel to Peterborough to give the support the patient needs.

"It relieves anxiety," she adds. "Hopefully they're going to start a trend."

Canine woes

"There seems to be more than usual untied dogs on all streets and more coming every day," reads a letter from Phil Graham. "The by-product of course, the mess on streets, sidewalks and lawns, the noise, and a menace to pedestrians who pass by. Some of those dogs are quite mean."

Graham suggests licence fees be doubled or tripled as one solution, "even after they are tied. No doubt this problem has been brought to your attention already, so I trust that action will soon be taken."

The difficult part of the program will be determining who is eligible for the bed.

"During daytime hours, such a decision will be made by the Director of Social Services, Joyce Armstrong. During nights and weekends, Nursing Administrative Coordinators will handle the process," says the release. "Careful managing of the project is crucial, in order that accommodation at the hotel will always be available for referrals from the hospital."

The Red Oak Inn is part of the STEL chain of hotels. Its vice-president, Robert Smith, came up with the idea during a meeting of all STEL managers.

"We were discussing how we could put something back into the communities in which the hotels are located," Smith is quoted as saying. His counterparts agreed with his plan and Smith met with St. Joe's representatives. "I knew it was going to be a success as soon as I contacted the hospital because of the enthusiastic response I received."

If the program works well, STEL may repeat it in Kingston, Thunder Bay, Sault Ste. Marie and St. John's Newfoundland, where it also owns hotels.

St. Joseph's administrator, Frank Lussing, says this is "a wonderful example of the private sector's continued generous support for hospitals in their communities."

School trip policies will be evaluated

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

An ad hoc committee to review and evaluate policies for school athletic and field trips has been approved by the Haliburton County Board of Education.

Trustee Linda Mumford presented the motion hoping to cut down on lengthy discussions which ensue each time the board considers a field trip. She tried to assure fellow trustees that the committee wouldn't be designed to prohibit all field trips.

"The purpose of it is not to be destructive, but a constructive committee," said Mumford.

Recently the board demanded that schools submit field trip requests well ahead of time in order to give trustees a chance to discuss the matter. Too often trustees felt rushed because many requests were submitted less than a month before the trip, forcing them to make a decision during the course of only one board meeting.

But Mumford found too many schools ignored this rule and submitted their requests late.

Mumford suggested it would be more feasible to have these requests go through an ad hoc committee which would make recommendations to the board for final approval.

The committee would be made up of three trustees, two principals and two teachers (from the elementary and secondary school panels).

Trustee Wayne Wood asked whether policy would be reviewed through the committee.

Mumford said policy would definitely be under review. "Maybe revised, maybe even changed. Or maybe it's all right the way it is. We'll find that out."

Trustee Nancy Stinson said she feels changes are needed. "Some of those trips go on and on and on and some should be cancelled."

Eight trustees carried the motion by voting in favour of establishing the committee. Mumford, Stinson, and trustee Mary Anne Wilson agreed to sit on the committee.

CRAFTY CRITTERS
Do you enjoy relaxing and creating something special?
Do you enjoy discussing new and different techniques?
Come and meet other kindred spirits and share an evening together of working on your current project, chatter and learning a few ideas.
We will meet twice a month at the Stanhope Firefighters Hall
North Shore Rd. off Hwy. 35
Sponsored by
The Recreation Committee,
Township of Stanhope

BREAKING FREE OF DEATH'S BONDS...

...THANKS TO TWO LIVER TRANSPLANTS, LESLIE NORTHEY NOW WAXES PHILOSOPHICAL ABOUT LIFE.

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

LESLIE NORTHEY came so close to dying he lost his fear of death. And yet there was something, some force within him, which made him want to continue his struggle for life.

"You have this feeling that you should be dead and wouldn't it be a relief that it would be the end," the two-time liver transplant recipient says of the harrowing week he endured between transplants. "Death is the easy way out of this dying part. It is the last blessing you receive out of this life."

"But life, with all its intricacies, keeps edging us on—the curiosity, your friends, your loves and even your deviltries—'What are we going to do next time the nurse comes in?'"

That "dying part" was truly almost the death of Mr. Northey, who's now 58. After four months of living quite contentedly with a new liver, the Minden resident's body suddenly rejected the donated organ. On a Friday in February, 1989, he was told he'd need to have a second transplant if he was to live.

"His first reaction was 'I can't go through this again,'" his wife Audrey remembers. "I went numb, I went into emotional shock. For two days I was calm, cool and collected. It didn't hit me till Sunday we have all this to go through again."

When a liver calls it quits, life is abject misery. Victims are easily recognizable because of the accompanying jaundice—yellowing of the skin. In Mr. Northey's case, the bile which is supposed to be released to aid digestion got blocked, and was being discharged through the skin. Hence the jaundice.

But there's more to it. The liver is a complex organ, master of 100 functions. "All infections are filtered through the liver, which acts as a purifier. It also converts sugar to starch and produces hormones," explains Mrs. Northey, a retired nurse. It also works with all the other organs to keep the pulse of life running smoothly. When it goes, the other organs are affected.

Mr. Northey's problems with his liver began in 1974, when his jaundice was misdiagnosed as infectious hepatitis. "It turned out," says his wife, "that he had gallstones blocking the bile duct and when the bile can't come out, it destroys the liver."

The result is cirrhosis, scar tissue of the liver. "Once it develops, there's no cure. That part of the liver is dead."

Your degree of health depends on the degree of functioning of your liver. Always an active man—pilot, snowmobiler, scuba diver, outdoorsman, and by profession, Hydro linesman—Mr. Northey was most bothered by a lack of energy.

"I was starting to get this lazy feeling," the quiet man remembers. "I knew I was in for ongoing problems in June of 1976 when I had to go back into the hospital to get sludge removed. Then I got along very well until into the eighties. It was in '82 I started to have cirrhosis. That's when it starts to limit your activity."

Gallstones are thickened sludge and because Mr. Northey's bile duct was still blocked, the sludge kept forming, damaging more and more of his liver. Because the liver was injured, "I developed what they call bleeding in the veins of your stomach and esophagus. It's the pressure of the blood not being able to flow through the liver."

After cauterizing the veins with silver nitrate several times, the doctors recommended what is in effect by-pass surgery. A shunt would allow the blood to circumvent the liver. This stopped the bleeding but the liver kept deteriorating.

It wasn't a good time in Mr. Northey's life. When poisons can't be filtered through the liver, they come out through skin, causing terrible itching. He lost muscle power and strength, but worst of all, he became emotionally confused.

"When he was ill, he had a total personality change," Mrs. Northey says, looking over at her husband. "He was irritable, lacked patience, and I found that really hard to deal with—he wasn't himself."

"I was always an argumentative son of a gun," Mr. Northey adds, prompting his wife to say "I wouldn't say he's argumentative, but he's stubborn. I think he's back to the way he was—very easy going and calm."

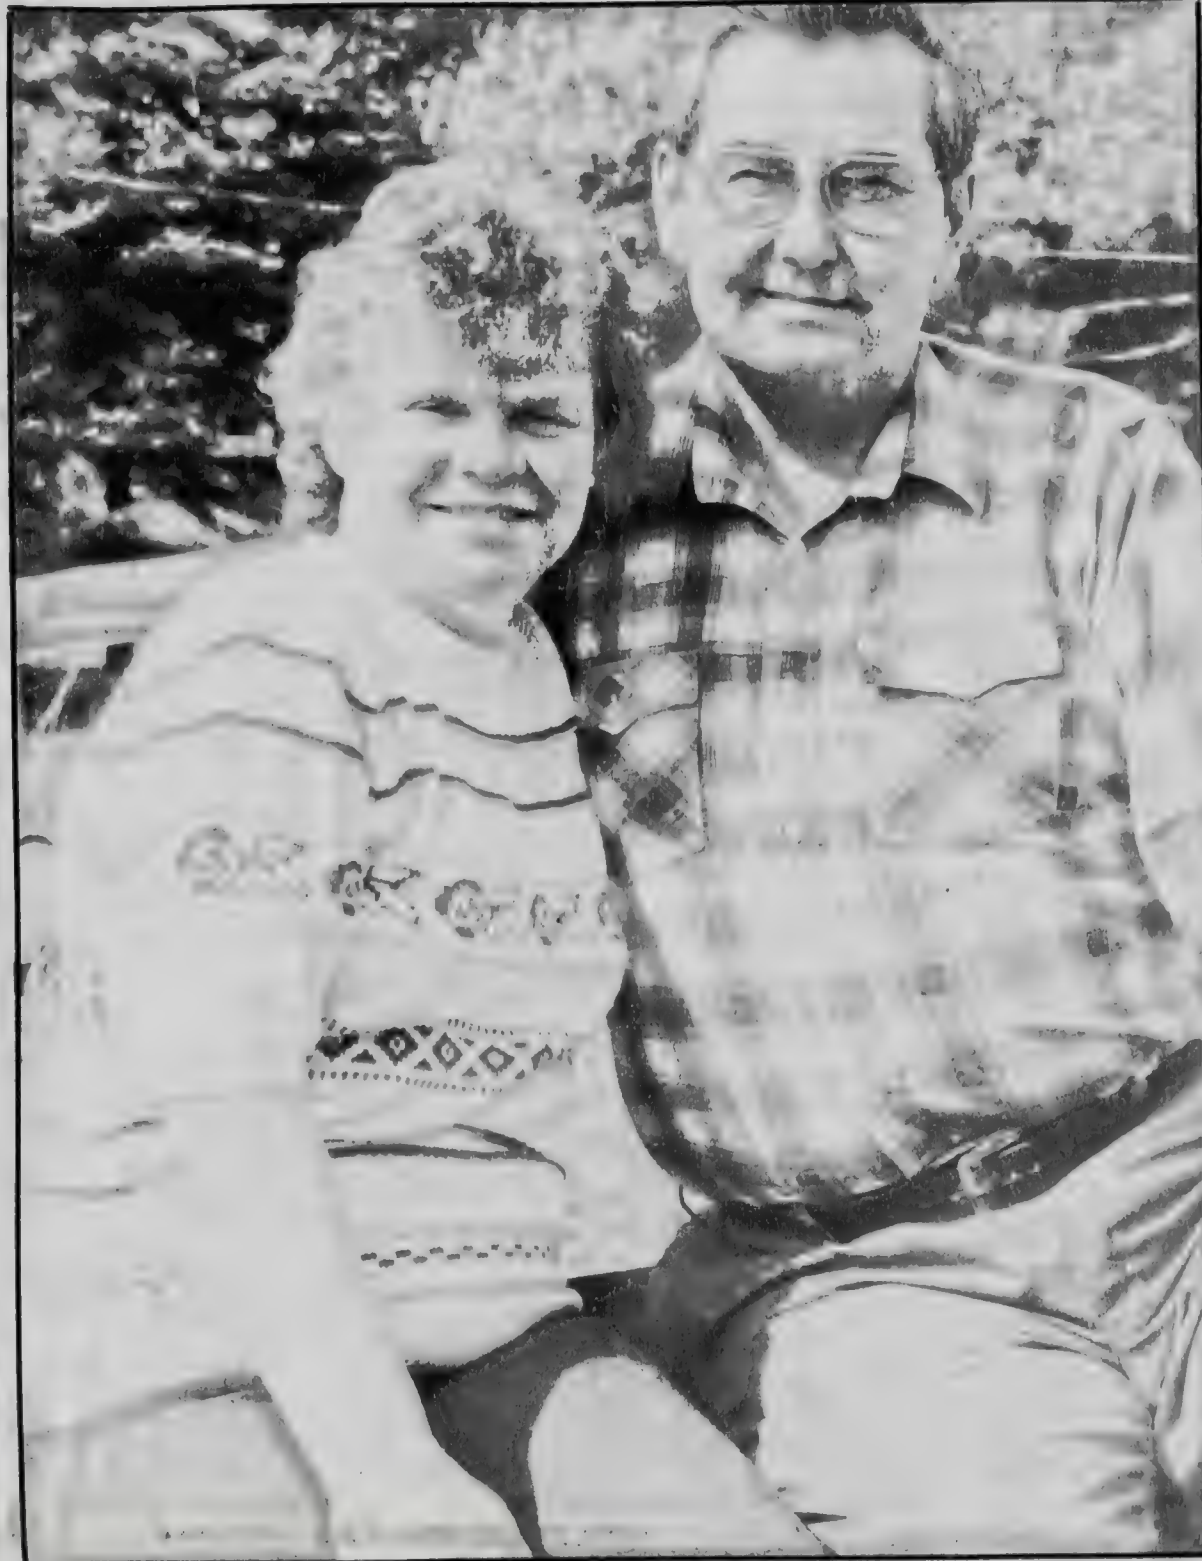

A decision to transplant

Mr. Northey's mental state was taken into consideration when doctors decided in May of 1988 that only a transplant could solve his problem. They also assessed "physical condition, attitude, somewhat your age, and the possibility of your coming back to normal." If Mr. Northey's cirrhosis had been caused by alcohol abuse, that would have been a mark against him.

"They normally don't do liver transplants on people with alcohol-related diseases because there are so few livers being donated," says Mrs. Northey.

Then followed the waiting. And waiting. And waiting.

"We were beginning to think you'd never get your liver," says neighbour and friend Betty Harrison (see accompanying story). She remembers the night Mr. Northey addressed his fellow Kinsmen about his ordeal. "You didn't leave a dry eye in the place. You looked so sick and everyone was weeping."

Audrey & Leslie Northey: New appreciation of togetherness

By this time, Mr. Northey didn't care what they did to him. With the pain and confusion, he realized "this is no quality of life. My main concern was I didn't want my family to be left with me as a detriment or a cripple in their society, or all society."

In the two and a half months he lay waiting in a Toronto General Hospital bed, Mr. Northey went into three comas. So it was with fear his wife would make her way to his bedside.

"The waiting on my part was really nerve-racking because I never knew if the phone would ring (to tell her a liver had been found) or whether he'd be there the next day. My friends in Toronto were very supportive. These two friends took me out to lunch and talked about other things than the hospital."

Friends were also made in the hospital lounges, where family members would gather, nerves fraught, emotions at the breaking point. They eventually would form their own impromptu support group.

It was at this time Mrs. Northey realized the value of her nursing training and natural inquisitiveness.

"Some marriages break up because they can't stand the stress. I read everything I could about liver disease and I understood why he was that way. And I made a point of telling other people why their (spouses) might be that way. They knew I was a nurse so I had a lot of people coming to me. Everyone might have a different story but you're in the situation."

Mrs. Northey's coping skills were so well developed, she was used as an example to other families. The lesson she told them is ignorance is

'You do it for a selfish reason,' Betty Harrison says of why she and her husband Norman agreed to donate their late son Tim's kidneys. 'We just wanted him to be alive somewhere.'

The gift of life a selfish act

by MARTHA PERKINS

IT ALL HAPPENED in a matter of hours. Fifteen-year-old Tim Harrison was refereeing a local hockey tournament. A slap of the hockey stick and a puck flew through the air, hitting him on the head.

He didn't think he was badly hurt, so he finished out the game. By early evening however, his parents realized something was seriously wrong. On the way to Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay by ambulance, the Minden boy's breathing was erratic and his mother, Betty, feared for his life.

Not much could be done in Lindsay and Tim was rushed to a Toronto hospital, where he was swallowed into the bustle of the emergency department. Shortly after, a grim-looking doctor came out to speak to Betty and Norman Harrison.

"We can't do anything for Tim," the doctor said, explaining how a brain hemorrhage had brought him next to death. "Would you consider donating his kidneys?"

"We were numb because it all happened so suddenly," Mrs. Harrison remembers of the evening. Their son's death hadn't really been accepted when they had to make the decision about the transplant.

"You do it for a selfish reason," Mrs. Harrison says of why they did agree to donate their son's kidneys. "We just wanted Tim to be alive somewhere."

At that time, transplants were new, and not many organs were being retrieved. As well, doctors didn't tell the Harrisons who received their son's kidneys. "We just perchance knew a nurse and she told us" the transplant had saved someone else's life.

"We were awfully glad to know they were used," says Mrs. Harrison, who several years later adds "I'm glad we did it."

Since then, the Harrisons have become friends with Leslie and Audrey Northey. (See story above.) Together they want to increase awareness of the need for people to sign their donor card.

"A lot of people are apprehensive to sign their card because they think doctors will yank them out too soon," Mrs. Northey says. But the doctors' first commitment is to keeping patients alive and it is only when exhaustive tests show the patient is either brain-dead or close to death that they will consider organ retrieval. The staff which works on transplants is in an entirely different area of the hospital.

All drivers' licenses have a section where drivers can agree to donate organs if they're in a fatal accident. People can agree to donate specific organs, or whatever is needed.

As the Northeys say, in times when death is inevitable, a donation can mean the difference between life and death for someone else. Mr. Northey is alive today only because two families agreed to donate their loved ones' livers. But there are others who are tragically ill, waiting for the proper donor.

"There isn't a day go by when you remember you've got a second chance at life," Mr. Northey says of what it's like to be on the receiving end.

His brush with death has given him more insight about life. "You don't get much until you give, and that's where the donor comes in too."

Elva Cooper feted in style at 90th birthday celebration

WEST GUILFORD NEWS

by: ELEANOR COOPER

Many friends and relatives celebrated Elva Cooper's 90th birthday at the Centre on Saturday. The weather cooperated, the pipe band played, flowers were brought, a guest book available and food in abundance was shared by those fortunate enough to attend the event. Two who had already this year celebrated 90th birthdays in February and March respectively were on hand to extend greetings: Blanche Linton and Ralph Bice. In attendance from Toronto were two nieces of Stan Cooper's: Joan Varley and Janet Grey with her husband Terry and their father Ellis Smyth; Claude and Wynne Woodcock from Mississauga; Ian and Cindy Foster and Mildred Cooper; Mildred's sisters Beulah, Ruth and Marie, Ruth's husband Fred Jones and daughter Darlene Dobbins of Peterborough were glad to be together for this special occasion.

Cheryl Cooper and her mother Marge Nicholls are to be congratulated on the quality, appearance and quantity of food prepared and served so beautifully. Take a bow too girls: nieces, daughters, grandchildren-in-laws—who decorated the centre with such style and artistry. Many were the messages of congratulation from all levels of government as well as from the people from nearby neighbourhoods and from afar.

Evelyn and Dwain Bradley of Thunder Bay presented Mother with a portrait of Stan and Elva Cooper, and Evelyn read a poem she had composed in tribute to the guest of honour. Shirley and Ken Rapson's son, Michael and his wife, Wanda were joined by the Bill Rapson's. Lynn Domville (Eve's daughter) and sons, Matthew and Marc of Montreal, spent the weekend at mother's, as did Al and Marie Cooper of Woodstock. Al and Marie's daughter and family were also present: Steve, Janet, Sarah and David Robb.

We were delighted that Martha Perkins had time to come and record the event in her special way as well. Not only were we pleased by the presence of those from farther away, it was gratifying to see the crowd from local communities who evidently held Elva Cooper in high regard and wanted to wish her well. The gifts were brought home and opened on Sunday at leisure.

Saturday evening was spent in visiting and making music at Sid and Louise Cooper's. More special music was presented in church when Bill Glidden's choir from St. George's sang the message of Christian hope in beautiful and joyous refrain. All in all, it was an occasion to remember with gladness for many years to come.

Congratulations to Don Sisson on his 65th birthday which was celebrated on Wednesday, April 25 at Lakehaven Restaurant, West Guilford with about 24 family and friends.

Highland Senior's Games will be held on May 7 for age 55 and up. Forms and information are available at the Drop-In Centre in Haliburton for those interested in participating. There are 14 games in all to choose from. Winners play on with Muskoka.

The Highlands Little Theatre production goes on this week. The rather lengthy title really means a lot of comedy. Directors Nancy Robichaud and Melissa Stephens have worked hard with the cast to present what promises to be a wonderful show. Come and enjoy "How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying" this week at the high school auditorium.

The Ray Sissons of Pine Lake exchanged houses and land with the Shane Sissons of Grass Lake just recently.

Most of the tickets have been sold for the 1990-91 concert series. Inquiries may be directed to Ruth Still or to Ralls' End Gallery concerning late purchase of tickets for this outstanding series.

Terry Griffin and Sharon Packard were married at Maple Lake United Church on Saturday, April 21, 1990. A reception and dance were enjoyed by many friends and relatives at the West Guilford Centre afterwards.

Bob Deremo and Debbie Wilson were married at St. Andrew's Anglican Church on April 21 with the Rev. John Phillips officiating. The family gathered afterwards at Greg and Sandra Bishop's home and the dance was held in the evening at the Legion. We wish both of these couples every happiness.

The Baptist Church congregation participated most vigorously in a work bee to clean the grounds around the church on Saturday.

Bonnie (Stevens) Jennings and children, Jason and Tiffany visited at home with Ken and Doreen Stevens on the weekend.

Leslie Chumbley and I attended an Anglican Church Women's meeting of A.C.W. presidents in the Victoria-Haliburton deanery on Tuesday in Cobocok.

Keep in mind the ideas you have for reunion of Guilford School people on July 1.

FAMILY TIES: It was Elva Cooper's day to bask in love and friendship when she turned 90 this week. Surrounding their mother at Saturday's celebration are, clockwise from left: Toby West, Evelyn Bradley, Sid, Al and Earl Cooper and Shirley Rapson. (Son Lorne died several years ago.)

HOME SUPPORT NEWS

INCLUDING THE DROP-IN CENTRE

by NORMA HODGSON

ONCE AGAIN the seniors of Haliburton are geared for action in the Haliburton County Senior Games, which were officially opened April 20 at the Haliburton County Home Support Services luncheon in the Stanhope Community Hall.

The Senior Games banner was brought in by Norma Crewson and Harold Bebbington, both wearing the distinctive Haliburton tartan hats and vests. Harry Hodgson, chairperson of the Haliburton Senior Games, introduced Reeve Harry Davis, who declared the Summer Games to be officially open on behalf of Stanhope Township and Haliburton County. The games were blessed by Pastor Brian Plouffe.

Elva Robinson gave a brief history of the Senior Games. The concept of seniors getting together for fun, friendly competition and social interaction began in Alberta and quickly spread to the other provinces. The provincial competition, Actifest 88, was held in Brampton and was a tremendous success. More than 1200 seniors representing the 37 Districts of Ontario participated in the three-day competition. This year Actifest 90 will be held in London over a four-day period, August 7-11. Haliburton expects to have good representation.

The games will begin on May 14 and run to June 14 with venues throughout the county. The schedule is as follows: Contract Bridge, May 14, in West Guilford; Euchre, May 15, Haliburton Legion Auditorium; Darts, May 16, Haliburton Legion Club Room; Cribbage, May 18, Kinmount Legion; 5-Pin Bowling, May 22, Carnarvon; Duplicate Bridge, May 24, HCHSS Drop-In Centre; Lawn Bowling, May 28, Minden Lawn Bowling Club; Horseshoes, May 30, Gooberham; Walking, June 1, Haliburton Secondary School; Triathlon (Ball Throw & Walk), June 1, Haliburton Secondary School; Swimming and Triathlon Swim, June 5, Pinestone Inn; Tennis, June 4, Stanhope Tennis Club; Shuffleboard, June 6, Minden Shuffleboard Club; and Golf, June 11, Blairhampton Golf Course.

All adults 55 and older are invited to participate. No expertise is required. The community games provide an opportunity for friendly competition and social interaction. The three top winners or teams will compete with the winners from the Muskoka community games in the District 11 Play-Offs to be held from June 19-27. Gold medal winners from these events will be competing in Actifest 90 in London.

The Haliburton County Senior Games closing luncheon will be June 14 in the Haliburton Legion. Registration forms for the games are available at the Drop-In Centre in Haliburton weekdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and in Minden on Mondays and Tuesdays at the Haliburton County Information Centre in the Minden Municipal Building from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. No registrations will be accepted after May 7. For more information please contact Sherron Sisson at 457-2171.

Remember, June is Senior Citizens Month.

Awards for Haliburton presented at convention

LEGION NEWS

by: MABEL BRANNIGAN

All members are urged to attend the Branch Annual Meeting on Thursday, May 3, 1990 at 7:30 p.m. to elect your officers for next year. Assisting Deputy Zone Commander Sylvia will be the Minden Branch 636 President and a team of officers. Bring a pot luck and enjoy a time of comradeship after the meeting.

The D.V.A. representative attended at the Branch last week and looked after 12 clients. He will be here again on July 31.

Legion Seniors Chairman, Doreen Hawman reports that at least 25 Legion Seniors received assistance in tax return preparation. This has been a valuable service to our members.

Chairman Bruce and Committee see bingos picking up with spring weather. Fifty-four members will be called this week for the jackpot.

The latest Bulletin has gone out. If anyone has been missed on the mailing list, let us know.

Comrade Ken Fieldhouse has returned from England and will be in touch with the sick, among whom is Ray Scott who is once again in Peterborough.

Approximately 400 members from 56 Legion Branches attended the annual District Convention in Belleville on April 27, 28 and 29. Attending as guests and delegates from Branch 129 were Wally and Nina Chambers, Grenville and Verna Draper, David and Dorothy Stirrett, Fred Knight, Maxine Cross, Irene Higgins, Mabel Brannigan, Sylvia Sisson attended Saturday.

Provincial Command First Vice President presented two District awards and one Provincial award to Branch 129 President who accepted on behalf of the Branch. Also, several Youth Education Awards have recently been awarded to your Branch and will be presented at a reception in the near future.

Competition was held for the 1991 District Drumhead among Port Hope, Lindsay, Bancroft and Haliburton. The voters chose Haliburton, and we will be honoured to host this event in September 1991.

Most important on the agenda was the establishing and financing of a tri-district hospital for veteran care.

The guest speaker, Comrade Paterson followed the banquet. He stressed the need for more Legion concern for British Commonwealth Ex-servicemen's Legion veterans in such areas as the Cayman Islands, Turks and Caicos, Montserrat and other areas of deplorable conditions in the Caribbean. Haliburton has always supported this Prince Phillip appeal and will continue to do so.

The Convention concluded with a parade to the cenotaph and wreath laying ceremony. On parade representing your Branch was a well-trained colour party along with Branch and Ladies Auxiliary members.

The Ladies Auxiliary annual convention was hosted at Branch 129 on April 23 with approximately 165 in attendance. They have this opportunity only not bliss. It can cause fear, misunderstanding and a lot of unnecessary turmoil.

Overcoming guilt is part of organ transplant, recipient says

The other thing you have to learn is not to feel guilty because you're looking forward to someone else dying. People only have one liver, and there's no mechanical replacement. So for Mr. Northey to receive a new liver, he knew it would have to come from someone who was dying. (Organs must be functioning to be suitable donor material. That is, if someone dies before they reach the hospital, organs cannot be used. Blood must be flowing through the organ right up until the organ is removed.)

"It's a situation we have no control over so it's making the best of a bad situation," Mrs. Northey says. A person will die in an accident whether there is someone waiting for the liver or not.

Finally, the good (bad) news arrived. A man in his forties had a car accident in downtown Toronto and nothing could be done to save him. He would be a suitable donor of Mr. Northey's new liver.

"At first I didn't believe it and Les said 'That's just great, I'm ready,'" Mrs. Northey remembers.

After the 13-hour surgery, Mr. Northey's journey back to good health advanced relatively quickly. There were relatively no complications and after a month, he was back at home.

Being at home in Minden was a rather big adjustment to make. For months, he was wrapped in the secure cocoon of the hospital and his old world on this quiet residential street seemed new and strange.

He also had to wrap his mind around not being able to work. When first bothered with his liver, Mr. Northey had returned to the job he loved as soon as he was able. He liked the work, and he liked the people. Now he had to accept that illness had retired him.

"All of a sudden I realized I'd never go back to work as a linesman so I made plans to do other things. I was an open book. You put up with what's left."

This philosophy was not altogether new to Mr. Northey, but illness had given it a sharper edge.

"The mind is the first part of recovery," Mr. Northey says of his new, hard-earned convictions. "It's the power of the mind that heals. The healthier you get, the more you try to get things out of life."

"You have to be capable of accepting change." Then he smiles. "There are certain blessings to being sick."

This philosophy stood him in good stead when his body suddenly rejected the liver.

Usually, if a body won't accept a transplant, rejection happens soon after the operation. Doctors have no explanation of why after doing so well after so long, Mr. Northey would be thrown back into the dangerous world of the dying.

That week of waiting for the second transplant was a physical hell, but Mr. Northey faced it quite calmly. As he said earlier, the dying part was so painful, death would have been a relief.

"I was terrible. I was sick. I was right out of it," he says of his condition. "I had muscle cramps you could hardly believe... But it's funny how you lose your fear. You have to sort of live it."

That Saturday, a second donor was found and on February 24, 1989, Mr. Northey received his second liver, only the ninth Toronto General patient who got this second chance.

Mr. Northey's initial reaction after surgery was the simple joy of being alive. He remembers thinking to himself, "I can make my little finger wiggle." You wiggle your toes. Each day as it goes by, you test yourself. Your breathing tube comes out, and you take your first breath. (He grunts to illustrate his next point.) Yea, there's noises there, I can talk. You're forever assessing yourself."

Recovery, though, was not as smooth as it was the first time.

In the past year, Mr. Northey has been in and out of hospital—bowel surgery, hemorrhaging, and breaking his hip didn't help much either.

"But they're all incidents," he says, once more waxing philosophical. "They can't treat these things but you have to be able to fight it."

Adjustments must continually be made by both of them. Although she first just took a leave of absence from nursing, the transplants convinced Mrs. Northey it was also time for her to retire. It wasn't something she was looking forward to, because she too loved her job.

"I haven't missed it as much as I thought," she says today. "I'm just anxious for Les to be well enough to make plans for us to travel."

Little by little, Mr. Northey has been making forays into community life again—he even takes the house-bound out for country drives. Yet both sense that the community is having a harder time accepting Mr. Northey back in its midst.

"There are a lot of people who I'm surprised haven't come to see us," says Mrs. Northey. "I feel they don't understand and don't know how to deal with it. A lot of people don't know how to approach you, so they stay away."

Yet that's not to say there hasn't been a great outpouring of support and caring. The stack of get-well cards attest to many acts of friendship, and Mrs. Northey has also been boosted by people's expressions of compassion.

Although the transplants have had their fair share of tragic elements, one cannot help but leave the Northey's house without sensing something positive has occurred. A marriage is strong enough to withstand the onslaught of illness. Death is no longer a faceless mask, but something that can be dealt with. And life itself is to be revelled in, recognizing it as the gift it truly is.

Wilberforce sawdust heap eclipses Earth Day success

WILBERFORCE NEWS

by: WINNIE SCHOFIELD

Earth Day was a blessing to the community. Much of the roadside litter revealed in the gutters when the snow melted mysteriously disappeared. Our children have been quick to grasp the idea of the importance of a clean environment and will hopefully adopt good habits for the future.

As our effort toward Earth Week we decided to tackle one of the worst sights in the village. An enormous mountain of sawdust has been accumulating for months in the mill yard of the Wilberforce Veneer Plant. There have always been piles of sawdust in the mill yard. Through the years it was trucked away, mostly to the Lloyd Barnes farm. It was there spread over the land and Lloyd has pronounced it as being beneficial to the soil. News of a plant being built in Bancroft that would make use of all available saw dust for making pressboard prompted the Wilberforce Veneer Plant to begin stock piling the factory sawdust. But things didn't quite turn out that way. It seems the Bancroft Company, now in full operation, has sufficient material from other sources and will not need what our plant has to offer.

So here we have this ever increasing load of refuse that nobody wants. Manager Ubald Riopel held little hope for its future removal. He had been in touch with a firm in Kitchener who showed some interest. However, after trucking away a tractor trailer load some weeks ago, they have made no further contacts with the company. Ubald Riopel was putting in his last day as manager of the Veneer Plant. He is returning to his home in North Bay. The new manager will be Bernice Olszewski, a local man who may have some fresh ideas about that ugly pile of saw dust. There is some cause for concern that is could be a serious fire hazard.

The Monmouth Senior Citizens Club of Wilberforce is sending an invitation to seniors in the area to attend a Fun Day being held on Tuesday, May 15th at the Lloyd Watson Centre. There is promise of a delicious lunch being served at 12 o'clock. This will be followed by skits and songs by the Club members, plus entertainment by local talent. The cost is only $5 per person. Come and join the group for an afternoon of fun and good fellowship.

There has been a book exchange at the Library. A film will be shown to the school children this week to keep up their interests about litter bugs. New hours at the library for Thursdays have begun. Thursday library day begins at 11:30 and continues until 3:30. Other hours remain the same.

Bill Brooks serves up very prodigious feast

WILBERFORCE LEGION

BRANCH 624

by: Edwin Scott

"Bill Brooks' candle-light roast beef dinner on Saturday, April 21 was a big success. Colleen Riley, Phyllis Bowen, Birgit Floden and Marion Clark did a fine job of serving the guests a delicious repast, prepared by Bill, assisted by his good wife Margaret. We heard nothing but praise from the guests who attended. These included a bus load from Bancroft Legion, and friends from the Cardiff and Wilberforce area. Due to our limited seating capacity, it was necessary to turn some people away. After dinner Mary Driscoll provided a good variety of music for those who wished to dance. Next time Bill organizes a dinner, we suggest you get your tickets early—only a limited number will be sold.

On May 8th, Tuesday at 8:00 p.m., we will be choosing a slate of officers and executives for a two-year term. Larry Burke of Cardiff Legion will officiate. If you do not vote, please don't complain afterward about who was or who was not elected.

Pat Gallen's bingo parties on Monday nights are drawing good crowds, and darts on Wednesday and euchre on Thursday evenings are popular. Darts and euchre will be winding down the end of May.

"Get well" wishes go out to Sally Mather. We hope she will soon be feeling better—she is missed at the Branch.

Birthdays, family get-togethers mark Dorset Easter celebrations

DORSET NEWS

by: PHYLLIS BRISCOE

Birthday wishes to Shane Roper on the 23rd, a happy birthday to Ian Girard on the 25th when he will be seven years old. Also remembered is Len Seedhouse who celebrates on the 29th and to Harry Clayton for whom there was an open house at the Dorset Recreation Centre. A special wish for Len Avery, a resident of Bracebridge Villa who celebrated his 99th birthday on the 24th.

We extend sympathy to Veronica Anderson, whose husband Stanley passed away in hospital on Thursday, April 19 after a prolonged illness. Condolences to his family.

Easter Sunday wasn't a nice sunny day as often is the case but the weather didn't deter worshippers from attending church of their choice, with the local houses of worship being well filled. The Easter service is always a beautiful one.

Many families got together for an Easter celebration. Some gathering their families together at home, other travelling to be with family members in other areas.

Hazel Sears had been visiting her daughter, Norma in Hamilton but came home for the weekend and entertained family members. Ellen and Stan Booker travelled to Cobourg to spend the weekend with their daughter Lynda.

Do we believe that spring is here? The saying "changeable as the weather" has never proven truer than in recent weeks. No predictions, just hope.

The Dorset Public School parents are looking for a dependable electric stove for the school kitchen. If anyone knows of one available please call Kerry Lock at 766-2246.

Happy birthday wishes to Audrey Clayton who will be four on March 20. Best wishes also to Sherry Haynes on the 16th. Belated wishes to Mel Bartman who celebrated on March 9.

The World Day of Prayer was celebrated at St. Mary Magdalenes Anglican Church in Dorset on March 2. It was well attended with members from Hillside and Dwight churches as well as the Dorset churches. The theme, prepared by the women of Czechoslovakia was "A Better Tomorrow—Justice For All" and was expounded upon by the very capable guest speaker, Ann Swinger of Ronville Road. A social time followed and refreshments were served.

H.H. If you use two sets of measuring utensils, one for dry ingredients and one for wet. Saves time.

Women's Institute votes

by JEANNE SEARS

On April 18th the election of Officers for Minden Women's Institute was held at the Common Room. The usual opening and year-end reports were given by treasurer Annie Kernohan, Program Coordinator Jean Cox and Card Convenor Irene Moore. We had a very busy 1989 and thanks to all who participated. Collections were taken for Pennies for Friendship. The cards number 187 for the year and our donations from pennies was $37. These go towards the Associated Country Women of the World and our donation besides this, through District for the same association, is another $15. District Director Mary Cox gave a few details of the Victoria East meeting held on April 9.

Irene Moore very capably conducted the election with no changes at this time. Delegates to go to Victoria East District Annual May 9 are Mary Cox, Annie Kernohan, Jeanne Sears and Jean Cox with several cars to take these ladies and other members for that day at Fenelon Falls United Church. A craft exhibit will be set up during that lunch hour. There was some discussion about our Fair Exhibit and items are to be made by seven members. The bus trip of June 13 to Cullen Gardens has been booked and members are bringing ideas for that afternoon to the next meeting but tickets may be reserved now through Annie Kernohan. The roll call of dues had 15 members present. For the Public School Essays, judges will be Jean Cox (convenor), Annie Kernohan and Bea Berry. Hopefully, winning students may be at our next meeting to receive awards. The Curator of Tweedsmuir History then gave a few questions and suggestions and the four books were on display. We welcome any historical items and brief write-ups to add to these. Honorariums of $15 each were to be paid to our secretary Mary Cox, and treasurer Annie Kernohan, as we thank these ladies for their help.

The meeting adjourned and all enjoyed a social half hour. Next meeting is May 16 at the Common Room at 2 and we welcome guests to come and join this group.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Spring fashions pick up on 'green' trend

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

THE "GREENING" OF SOCIETY is not limited to grocery stores and blue box participants. This year's fashion statement gives new meaning to colour consciousness.

At Friday night's Fashion Fiesta '90, the models coming down the PineStone runway often sported dresses, culottes and skirts which borrowed from environmental themes. The fragile rain forests, the vibrancy of wild flowers, the earth tones of our farmland all made their presence known.

Meanwhile, another worthwhile cause was being supported—the Victoria-Haliburton Summer Camp Fund. Proceeds will help local children get a taste of this ritual.

Presented by The Village Shoppe and Country Pickin's of Haliburton, the popular event heralded a bright and bold summer ahead. Yet at the same time, styles came back to the basics, with no fancy frills or excess of design.

June brides were not forgotten either when Faye's Bridal Shoppe of Peterborough presented its collection. Fashions of two eras mixed as the "brides," visions of modesty with the high-collared, lace designs, turned around to reveal bare backs.

Sylvia Holland of the Village Shoppe and Laurie Bonfield of Country Pickin's were not alone in making the night a success. Hair fashion and design was done by Hair Emporium, while Anne Bishop of Mary Kaye (and Slimmer Trimmer U) did the make-up. Country Rose and Shrub arranged the floral designs, which were spruced up by Paulette Blake and Sue Little.

Flare and frills abounded at Fashion Fiesta on Friday night. Presented by The Village Shoppe and Country Pickin's, the popular event was fun for both models and audience. Above, Connie Robinson opens the show with the exuberant shake of morocaas while at left, Laura Jackson models nightwear. Proceeds went to the summer camp fund.

Norland Horticultural Society treated to colourful slide show

KINMOUNT & AREA NEWS

by: MILLIE MOSS

Happy birthday to Peter Cruickshank on May 7.

I'm told that Cambridge United Church in Lindsay was packed to capacity on April 17 and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the beautiful music/singing of the Welch Choir. Charlotte Chirpaugh, who enjoyed the evening, had the pleasure of a personal visit with some of the members and reported they really speak with a strong Welch accent.

The attendance at the Kirkfield Lions bingo is improving more every Tuesday evening. A great crowd of people over there.

Norland and Area Horticulture Society held a meeting Tuesday afternoon, April 24 at Norland Women's Institute Hall, where, following the regular business of the club, with George Crisp sitting in for President Lloyd Brown, everyone present enjoyed some beautiful slides of flowers and birds by Mr. Hall and a visit from our District Director on General business. It was arranged for some members to be responsible for the upkeep of the flower gardens at the various points in town. It was followed by a nice lunch and pleasant get together.

An open meeting on AIDS will be held at the Norland Community Hall on Wednesday, May 30 at 7:30 p.m. by the Victoria County Health Department. Let's find out all we can about this serious problem for the benefit of our families. Following the meeting refreshments will be provided by the Norland Area Seniors.

I was sorry to hear that Doris Barkwell of Kinmount as of April 25 was still very ill and in Toronto. We hope this wonderful lady will be well soon.

Congratulations to the new Lions Club Charter taking place at the Kinmount Fairgrounds Saturday, May 5. One of their first projects was operating the Kinmount Skating arena. Welcome to Kinmount Lions.

Congratulations are also in order for the Triangle Supplies in Lindsay celebrating thirty-five years of business on June 2.

Donna Stroud and Bill Moss Jr. have reported seeing baltimore orioles, robins, indigo bunting, an osprey over Bobcaygeon way and enjoyed their first 1990 taste of wild leeks.

Lori Lynn Liscombe of Toronto visited at the homes of Helen Graham, Mary and John Pyke last week.

As part of the Seniors Games of Victoria, Durham and Northumberland Counties there will be bridge games on May 8 at 1:30 p.m.; Fenelon Falls Seniors Euchre at 1:30 p.m. May 10 at Cambray; Snooker May 15 at 9 a.m. in the Lindsay Armouries; Cribbage May 16 at 9 a.m. at the Coboconk Legion followed by darts at 1:30 p.m.; shuffleboard May 17, 9 a.m. at Lindsay Armouries. More information regarding the games next week. Sympathy to all the family and many friends of Nora Brandon who was a lifelong resident of Kinmount area and who passed away recently following a long illness.

It is nice to see people starting to look around their properties on these nice days. Already there are some tulips and crocus, etc. in bloom.

Don't forget the Laxton, Digby and Longford Recreation Committee is, having a fifties and sixties dance at the Norland Recreation Centre on Saturday, May 19 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. There will be a D.J. and a light lunch will be served. More information may be obtained by calling Brenda or Fay at 454-3418, 454-8668, or 454-3518.

Sympathy to the family and many friends of Mae Chapman of RR. 1, Coboconk, known for many years as "Chapman's Antiques". Mae died recently and will be missed by all who knew her.

Bert Adams who underwent eye surgery recently is coming along well.

From May 25 through June 3 everyone over the age of 50 is invited to join in counting all the hours you move about and letting us know about it. Coboconk Seniors known for that week as "Coboconk Crawlers," have challenged the "Norland Streakers" in getting in the most mileage. Watch those "Streakers" go! You do not have to be a member of the Club to join in the fun and it will be good exercise for you. Call Gus and Nina Boyd at 454-2521 to get your entry/time sheet. All outdoor moving around counts.

Indian choir serenades seniors at Anglican tea

SENIOR LEAGUE

by: WINNIFRED BARNUM

There was our regular Tea Party and the Anglican Church Women from Haliburton were our hostesses: rose Conybeare, Gwen Hughes, Mavis Burk, Florence Webb and Eileen Morrison. The lunch was lovely and appreciated by everyone and we thank the ladies very much. As a sort of surprise, Pastor Fast came to the tea party and as his guests he had Dr. George Doxy (Canadian) and the Mizo Choir from the province of Mizorium, India. There were eight singers and a choir leader. They were beautiful singers and we really enjoyed them. Mizorium is the smallest and poorest province in India. Before the British came to them they were head hunters. The British started to teach them to be Christians and now the whole province is 100 percent Christian. There are half a million people and since they have become Christians they have no one going hungry and do not lack clothing. There are 28 singers in the choir and they have travelled in many countries. We thank them for entertaining and hope they come again.

In the evening, Nick Fomenko called bingo and showed us the prizes we will receive at the end of the period that the Kinsmen come. There is one for most bingos and one for best attendance. We sincerely thank him for coming and taking an interest in us.

Friday was Happy Hour in the auditorium. Most of the residents were there and some had friends with them. The Scottish Dancers were there for entertainment. They were piped in by Earl Cooper. Between dancers Doris played the piano and Earl the violin. The audience certainly enjoyed the program and thank you very much. The volunteers who looked after everyone's needs were Mary Guillemain, Jankie Thomas, Donna Luke and Melvin Robertson. We surely thank them for their help.

Ruby Lewis had her sister Irene Roberts and a friend to visit her.

Ada Turrall came home from the hospital where she had been a patient for a few days. We hope she will continue to be well.

Myrtle O'Halloran was to Peterboro to have a check up on Tuesday.

Congratulations to Dora Dawson on her birthday April 23, 1990. Happy birthday and many more Dora.

Evelyn Coleman came Monday for bible study. We studied about two women who were not named. One woman had a room built for Elisha to use as his own. Later Elisha asked her what she really wanted and she said a son as she had no children. Elisha told her by next year you will embrace your son and she did, but at seven years he died. She went for Elisha and he came her son Joel was restored to life.

The second woman had only a little food left but she used it to feed Elisha and he told her she never would be without food again and it was so. Thank you Evelyn, for talking to us.

In the evening York and Ena Marion came and showed movies on the history of Spain and some of the marvellous and beautiful building done by the Romans when they occupied Spain. It was very interesting and thank you for showing them to us.

Chapel service was conducted by Rev. Dawn Gilby from Kinnmount Anglican Church, Tuesday morning. The residents thank her very much for coming.

Last week Mable Buttery had a fall and was in the hospital a few days but is home again and doing very well.

Sunday evening Rev. John Burgess took the Chapel Service with Alice Jones at the organ. The attendance was very good and we wish to thank them very much.

Sunday Terry Barnum came and had lunch with me here, then we went to Haliburton to see the parade to the Cenotaph of the Legion Auxiliaries from several areas. Terry brought me home so I could meet my sister, her husband and daughter, May and Roy Cameron and Jacqueline Yateaman. They were taking me to Haliburton to see Wilda LaRue who had just come home from Apache Junction, Arizona. We went to the Kozy Korner for dinner, and while we were there, Terry came for his dinner, so we had it all together.

Since Mark Schell is retiring, a replacement has been selected. Her name is Lynn Shirley and we hope she will be happy here.

Tuesday afternoon the auditorium was set up like an old fashioned ice cream parlor, and the Kawartha Dairy and helpers brought in ice cream and toppings, and they served us whatever we liked and we could have seconds if we wished. There was no charge because the Kawartha Dairy gave us a treat. The Residents and invited guests from Staunworth Terrace thank those from Kawartha for their generosity and thoughtfulness.

We also thank the guests from Staunworth Terrace for spending this time with us. Thanks also to Kankie Thomas for her help.

The ladies of the United Church in Carnarvon invited several of the Residents of Hyland Crest to attend their silent auction and tea at their church. The proceeds were donated to the Hyland Crest bus fund.

Evelyn Coleman suggested we take the brown bear we are selling tickets on with us. She felt sure we could sell some at the tea. The only trouble was, I didn't take enough tickets. A hearty thank you to Evelyn for her effort. They had a great number of articles to sell and the afternoon was a real success. The Residents from Hyland Crest sincerely thank the United Church ladies for their hospitality and a lovely afternoon. Since we are without transportation, volunteers drove us. Our deepest thanks to Laura and Dick Kirkwood, Beth Parker and Mrs. Bursey. Rheta Jones, our Administrator followed. The amount of the proceeds from "Silent Auction" was $500 for our bus fund which we appreciate immensely.

We also received another donation of $1,000 and we thank the donor greatly.

WOODROW-STEPHEN WEDDING: Mr. and Mrs. William Woodrow and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stephen are happy to announce the marriage of their children Joyce and Mitch. The candle-lit wedding took place March 31, 1990 at Bonnie View Inn. The happy couple will reside in Haliburton.

CAS is looking for volunteers

The Haliburton Children's Aid Society is looking for people who are interested in volunteering to become a Special Friend, Parent Assistant, or Driver in the Haliburton area.

A Special Friend works with youngsters one-on-one providing moral support, friendship and companionship to participate in various community and recreational activities.

Parent Assistants provide moral support and assist with home and child management.

Drivers provide transportation to clients both within and outside the catchment area.

The Society is looking for reliable, mature individuals who are interested in the well-being of children and are comfortable with the issue of confidentiality.

Potential volunteers are welcome to contact the Society at 457-1661 to get a Volunteer Information Package and application form for these and other volunteer positions.

STUDENT LIFE AT HHSS

by: ERIN LYNCH

SOME OF US ARE still peeling from the sunburns we received last Thursday on Track and Field Day. We were lucky to be able to have it. Last Tuesday was the last day for signing up for events. You could see a crowd of students signing up for almost anything. The people who aren't nearly as athletic but wanted a Track and Field day to take place signed up for discus and shotput, compared to the running events. People don't realize that you don't have to be a track star to participate. You can go in just to beat your own standards, whether you finish in first place or last.

One thing that was really nice to hear was fellow students cheering each other on as they ran, jogged or virtually crawled by. I did feel sorry for those who were doing the long distance running, such as the 3000 metre in the hot blazing sun. It was hot enough just lying on the bank trying to improve our sunbans or spectating.

It was great that enough people signed up so we could all enjoy a day away from regular class. Everyone seems to enjoy that part, including the teachers. In some schools they only let out the people who are participating, and to participate you have to have attended at least three practices.

Not only did some students break last year's records, but HHSS won a soccer game. The girls junior soccer team had an exhibition tournament last Friday in Lindsay. The first game they unfortunately lost 0-1. But in their second game they bounced back and won 2-0. Last year the team had a bad season and lost every game. They only scored one goal the whole season, maybe contributing to the fact of not getting any practices on the fields before their first game. Between the second and third game they had a two hour wait and after sitting in the sun they just couldn't move as well, and were defeated 1-0. This season looks more promising than last year's!

The girl's senior team's luck was not with them at the tournament. The first game they lost 3-0. The second game was a tie, but no points were scored. The last game they were defeated 4-0. Better luck next time. To all the boys that said "girls soccer is as interesting as watching paint dry", maybe you should come and watch our next game. It's in Haliburton. You might be surprised!

Dorset students mix message with pizzas

by SALLY RITCHIE
Staff Reporter

WHALES, CARROTS, FROGS and tropical birds took on an unusual shape — and flavour — during Dorset Elementary School's celebration of Earth Day.

With the aid of teacher Michele Coneybeare and many parent volunteers, the students made pizzas to depict environmental worries.

The tropical bird, replete with tomatoes, pineapple and salami, colourfully illustrated their concern about the animals plants and natives of the Amazonian Rainforests. And Haliburton's own environmental problems were considered in their green pepper-laden frog. The students worry about the effects of oil, gas and acid rain on our lakes and their inhabitants.

Potential extinction of the whale due to oil spills and hunting was not overlooked by the students whose support of the large mammal took the form of an olive, mushroom and onion pizza.

Some industrious, (and hungry!) students made a cheese, carrot-shaped pizza represents the importance of our farmlands.

Pilots for Gallery's course being sought for election

GUILD NOTES

by: ELENE J. FREER

THE NOMINATING COMMITTEE is seeking people interested in serving the Guild by being a member of the Board of Directors. The directorate is responsible for the direction and the management of the Guild and its activities. Board members are elected for a two year term. If you would like further information or wish to have your name stand for election, please call the office.

Volunteerism is the heart of the Guild. The time, work, talents and the vision of hundreds of volunteers have enabled the Guild to grow from its modest beginnings in the early 1960s to its present form with over 300 members and the community has the services of a public art gallery. Each year, at the Annual General Meeting, the Guild recognizes one individual who has made an outstanding contribution to the organization.

Members are encouraged to submit the name of a candidate to receive an honorary membership. Letters, outlining the candidate's contribution, should be submitted to the Board of Directors on or before Tuesday, May 22. The name of the honorary member will be presented to the membership at the Annual General Meeting. Honorary members have full voting privileges and membership benefits.

The Student Art Bursary Programme coincides with Young Expressions exhibition (May 5-19). Bursaries, which are made available each year by businesses, service organizations and associations, enable many students to attend the Haliburton School of Fine Arts to further their interests in the visual arts.

To qualify for a Student Art Bursary, a student must be recommended by his or her teacher. Students are selected on the basis of having a positive attitude towards the visual arts, working consistently, demonstrating a joy for the process of creating, showing a potential for growth, using materials in an effective way and having a willingness to take risks. The goal of the Student Art Bursary Programme is to place less importance on the finished work and greater emphasis on the learning process.

The Haliburton Rug Hookers are once again participating in the Ontario Hooking Craft Guild's annual show. This exhibition features rugs, wall hangings plus much, much more from over thirty rug hooking guilds across Ontario as well as several groups from the United States. The exhibition takes place on May 12.

once every 13 years, and it was carried off in fine style. The day began with registration and a parade to the cenotaph led by the Haliburton Legion Pipe Band, Sgt. At Arms Grenville Draper and Padre The Reverend John Phillips. Guest speaker was L. A. Immediate Past Provincial President Teresa Achtenberg of Pembroke. Platform guests were Zone Commander Marg McLean, Deputy Zone Commander Marg Whalen, Rev. Phillips, Bill Davis, Reeve of Dysart et al; Bill Scott, M.P.; Ken Bell F4 Zone Commander; Mabel Brannigan, Branch 129 President.

By popular vote Marg McLean was returned as L.A. Zone Commander, Jean Dix as Deputy, and Irene Higgins as Sports Officer.

The young and delightful trumpeter was Damon Smith. The dinner was prepared by the Branch and served by 1129 Cadets. Cde. Jan Shipley, the Ladies and the Branch extend a warm thank you to all who helped make this a day to remember.

The L.A. will hold its next flea market on May 12.

Pizza delights!

These tiny chefs are also mini-environmentalists. Dorset Elementary School celebrated Earth Week by making these tasty pizzas, whose shapes remind us of how we need to take better care of our planet. Parents helped, of course, but no one needed to assist the students in polishing off their efforts.

place on Sunday, May 13 at Victoria Hall at Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario. The hours are 10am until 4pm. In addition to the show, Isabella Thomas, Marian Barsley, Margaret Fedorchuk, Annie Kernohan, and Peggy Beattie will be attending some of the workshops to learn new rug hooking techniques.

Ann Wardley, Ron Hall, Donna Gordon, Helen McNaughton along with other artists from Bobcaygeon will be exhibiting their work at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery located in Minden. These artists and craftspeople represent a larger group of people from the area surrounding Bobcaygeon and regularly meet in order to exchange ideas, discuss techniques and provide encouragement. A variety of media, from paintings to woodcarvings to papier mache sculptures, will be featured. The show opens with an artists' reception on June 2 (beginning at 2pm) and continues until June 16.

The following memorial was written by June Partridge.

Dudley Gordon died on March 8, 1990, at Sunnyside Medical Centre in Toronto after a short but difficult struggle with cancer.

Dudley will be remembered for his quiet, unassuming manner. Beneath this exterior was a warm, gentle but strong man with a twinkle in his eye and a warm word of greeting for all. Dudley was a private man who was energetic and ready to lend a helping hand whenever or wherever it was needed. He and his wife, Doris, have been members of the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts since the early 1980s. Last summer in particular, I remember seeing Dudley at the Summer Sale almost every day. He seemed tireless. Dudley will be missed by his many longtime friends and neighbours in Haliburton and Toronto.

Members of the Guild were saddened to learn of the passing of Mrs. Agnes Spenceley on March 23. Mrs. Spenceley was an active community volunteer helping at Extensicare, the Victorian Order of Nurses and with many other worthwhile causes. Guild members will best remember Mrs. Spenceley for her skillful and talented quilting. Each year, Mrs. Spenceley spent many hours helping to create the Guild's raffle quilt. For this year's quilt, Mrs. Spenceley pieced together the blocks and created the Prairie Points border. The Guild offers its sincere condolences to her husband, Rev. John B. Spenceley and her daughter, Elaine Jackson.

Volunteering at the Guild's annual Summer Sale is exciting, fun and rewarding. It is an incredible opportunity to work with a great group of people, meet the artists and help to make this, the Guild's major fund raising project another smashing success.

A Volunteer Coordinator is required to oversee the staffing of the Summer Sale. If you would like to fill this position, please call Alex McLeod at 457-1495. Volunteers are also needed to help with checking in the artwork, setting up the show, selling refreshments, sales, security, taking down the show as well as many other essential tasks.

To volunteer for setting up and taking down the show, please call Maggie McClure (286-1096). To volunteer for any of the other jobs, please call the office (457-2330).

Plans for the Guild's 7th annual art auction are well underway. Set for Thursday, August 2, this year's art auction will be held at the Pinestone Inn, Haliburton.

Last year's art auction was a tremendous success because of the involvement of so many people. Volunteers gave their time and energy. Artists and businesses donated and offered for sale many wonderful items which were quickly bid upon by a capacity audience.

Building upon the success of last year, the 1990 art auction promises to be bigger, better and even more exciting! But to accomplish this, the Guild needs your help. If you would like to be part of the zany art auction committee, please call the office. If you have artwork to donate (and for a donations a tax receipt will be issued), please call the office as well.

Jean Farrell will be organizing this year's Christmas Craft Show and Sale. If you would like to be part of this committee or would like further information about the sale, please call Jean at 286-2843.

OBITUARY

Lorne Ira Ray of Cardiff passed away suddenly on March 18 at North Hastings District Hospital. He was 48.

Born in Bancroft, he was the son of Arthur and Stella (Spence) Ray. He was the loving husband of Patricia (Wilson) Ray, whom he married in August 1964.

Mourning his passing are children Kelly Ray of Windsor and Jodi Ray of Cardiff. Dearly missed by brothers and sisters: Gord and Audrey Ray of Bancroft; Lois, Mrs. Ted Donaldson of Oshawa; Jean, Mrs. Del Neuman of Durham; Stewart and Penny Lowry of Burlington; Bill and Carol-Ann Lowry of Burlington; and Karen and Richard Martin of Trenton. He was predeceased by Shirley.

Also mourning his passing are family members: Marie Parker, Dave and Terry Parker, Tina and Randy Parsons, Joe and Celine Parker, Stephen and Kelly Parker, and Kathy Parker, all of Toronto, and Gerry and Maureen Wilson of Nova Scotia. He will be remembered fondly by many nieces and nephews.

Mr. Ray lived in Toronto and Oshawa before returning to the Bancroft area 23 years ago; he resided in Cardiff for the past 17 years. He was Assistant Road Superintendent with the County of Haliburton. He was a member of the Cardiff Legion, Branch 568, Bicroft Volunteer Fire Department, and the Anglican Church of Canada.

The funeral was held on March 21 at Wiggins Funeral Home with Father David Smith officiating. Interment will take place in the spring at Zion Cemetery, Hybla.

Pallbearers were Richard Towle, Dean Card, Jack Stringer, Jeff Murphy, Shawn Parker, Bradley Jenkins and Jason Donaldson. Honourary pallbearers were Eugene Roy, Bill Murphy Sr., Bill Murphy Jr., Glen Card, Doug McGhee, Randy Hood, Craig Towle, Lionel Towle, Gary Card, Doug Switzer, Jack Watson, Larry Donaldson, Don Donaldson, Bill Foote, Steve Ryan and the Bicroft Volunteer Fire Department.

"WORLD'S FAVOURITE OPEN SPORTS CAR"

(AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION AVAILABLE)

MAZDA

Miata

No other car in history has been greeted with such universal acclaim by the world's automotive press as our new sports roadster, the Miata.

Automobile Magazine took the unprecedented step of naming Miata its first-ever 'Automobile of the Year'. According to Road & Track, Miata is one of the 'World's 5 Best Cars'. Motor Trend picked Miata as one of the 'Top Ten Import Buys of 1990'.

In Australia, where sports cars are a passion, Miata has totally dominated the car awards. Wheels honoured Miata with its 'Car of the Year' title, Modern Motor selected Miata as 'Best Car of 1989/90' and Car Australia voted Miata 'Car of Australia'.

Now it's your turn to test drive Miata. For those of you more comfortable without a clutch pedal, we now offer a slick 4-speed automatic, as well as Miata's original 5-speed manual transmission.

Visit your Mazda dealer and have some fun behind the wheel of the world's favourite sports car, covered by the best warranty in the business.

O HOLY St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage. In time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart, and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present urgent petition, in return I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked. (Say 3 Our Fathers, 3 Hail Marys and 3 Glorias. Publication must be promised). (St. Jude pray for us & all who invoke your aid. Amen). This Novena has never been known to fail. Novena must be said for 9 consecutive days.
